Devoted to the upbuilding of Farmington and Oakland County

Nice warm weather we've been having, anyway.

The ball team is to cross bats with Redford next Saturday afternoon. We can't expect one or a half dozen to root against a whole town, so let's have a turnout of rooters—just for a change.

The country town has come to stay. Many the article that has been written concerning the chances for the continuance of the small business in the small town. Home patronage of home merchants is the solution of the problem, and the town merchant working in conjunction with the little town newspaper is commencing to make inroads into the mail order house coffers.

Before you make out that next order for Sears, Roebuck & Co., Montgomery Ward, or one of the several hundred mail order concerns, take a few minutes off and come down and consult your home merchant. Chances are that if the order is of any size, you'll save several dollars, get the goods at once, and if you're any kind of a fellow at all, he'll probably be willing to let you have a little time on it.

A certain good friend of the editor told us something that pleased us a whole lot the other morning. During the summer months he is making his home in one of the larger cities of Michigan and happened to be in the public library of that city. "The most pleasant surprise I have had away from home," was the way he put it, "when I found the Enterprise on one of the many reading tables." I hope I'm not vain, but I'm certainly glad that he found and enjoyed it, and those few words of possibly unintentional praise helped me to forget some troubles and again convinced us that life is certainly worth the living.

After a lifetime of struggles, the young man who early in life struck out for the big city, usually commences to long for the better life, where green grass takes the place of strangers—where men and women meet you as friends instead of payments—the country or the country town. Some even discover it before it is too late. A good life of work and right living can always make for you a place in a small town. The same life in the city usually only continues you in your old job, and probably a lone some one at that. The exception, of course, only proves the rule. It's a whole lot easier, and if you please pleasanter, to become a big man in a small town, than to be a little man in a big town. Think it over.

Summer Camp for Boys

The County Young Men's Christian Association will conduct a camp for boys on the shores of Voorheis lake during the month of August. The exact dates are August 5-14 for boys from 11-15, and from August 17-26 for boys from 15-20. There will be accommodations for 35 boys at each section and "first come will be first served."

County Secretary Verburg will be the camp director and will have with him a corps of assistants and leaders. He anticipates no difficulty in filling the camp with a merry crowd of boys. Anyone examining the camp folder must admit that the camp will be a great factor in the boy-life of the county.

All the campers will live in tents and an experienced chef will provide for the hungry wants of the boys. Nothing will be left undone to make the camp one that the boys of Oakland county will remember for years to come.

Novi Graduates

The graduating exercises Friday evening were well carried out. Miss Margaret West played the march and Rev. Huey gave the invocation. Ferrest Wilcox had the salutatory and Miss Pausy Hazen the valedictory. A. L. Moore of Pontiac gave a very interesting address on his travels in the Orient, and A. L. Craft, of Pontiac, commissioner of schools, gave a short address to the graduates and presented their diplomas. He also presented the eighth grade diplomas to Earl Martin and Donald Durfee. Miss McPherson of Detroit, who is a fine elocutionist, gave two recitations. Miss Mary Flint of Ypsilanti sang two beautiful solos. Quick's orchestra from Pontiac played several selections. A song by six little girls from the primary room was well rendered and showed the training their teacher, Mrs. Hill, had given them.

Base Season Starts.

Tuesday of last week was the beginning of the open season for black bass, both of the large and small-mouthed varieties, and many fishermen, who have been polishing up and repairing their tackle for weeks to be prepared for the arrival of June 16, are to be found on the banks of rivers and streams frequented by the gamiest members of the finny tribe.

To protect bass for the benefit of posterity, the Michigan fish and game laws provide that no more than 10 fish may be taken on any day. As further protection and for the prevention of commercializing the bass fishing sport, it is unlawful to have more than 10 fish at any time. The taking of bass less than 10 inches in length is prohibited and anyone who attempts to ship bass caught in Michigan out of the state is liable to prosecution. The open season extends from June 16 to January 31.
