Devoted to the upbuilding of Farmington and Oakland County

Just a reminder—Farmington stores close at 9 o'clock, July Fourth.

And a Michigan editor has studied the matter enough to pass judgment that the real calf law has nothing to do with slit skirts.

And another one says that women can now walk the streets in safety from fear of losin' something—not more pins, by any means—less clothes.

The weather man must have left on his vacation Saturday night, because somebody pulled the wrong lever and let winter out—and just before the Fourth at that.

And along with a lot of other mortals, we've about decided too, that if it becomes necessary to nominate Roosevelt to save the Republican party, it isn't worth saving.

There is a world of difference between "soon" and "sun". When the latter kisses some demure little maiden, 'tis apt to freckle her, but in the case of the former it only tickles her—maybe. We've stole this from an exchange.

So much has been said about the safe and sane Fourth of July, that about all that is left for the country editor to do, is to call attention to it. That the safe and sane Fourth idea has done more toward the elimination of fires, amputated hands, and the thousand and one other calamities, goes without saying. That it has come to stay is also well known. Remember safety first this Fourth, and as the State Fire Warden says: "Better that the children have the stomach ache next day from eating candy and sweets, than no hands to eat it with."

"For the first time in the history of Farmington that village now has an up-to-date newspaper and the people in whose hands its maintenance lies should not be slow in realizing the fact and rallying to support of its bustling editor, Bro. J. A. Price, for what is a town without a good live newspaper. Rochester Clarion. A compliment like the above is bound to tickle the palate of any editor, deserved or not, and coming from a man and editor of the calibre of Bro. Charles S. Reed, makes us a little inclined to the swell head. Whether the compliment is deserved, we leave to our readers.

If you like variety in weather you can't go wrong by making headquarters right here in Farmington. Heinz may have 57 varieties but at that he hasn't got anything on the Michigan weather man. Last week it was gloriously warm. Then Saturday evening along came the big storm and by Sunday it was gloriously cold—in fact so cold that several enterprising fellows made a date with the house furnace, and what's more, kept it. It continued cold Monday, and some say that a few snowflakes fell in Detroit. Monday night was nice and cool, but the sun managed to get through and into action along just before sunset, and Tuesday morning again shone forth bright and warm. At the time of writing this, the prospects look good for leaving your overcoat on the hook, and enjoying a red hot fourth of July. Here's hoping.

Right now, if we are correctly informed, there are a lot of men who are out of work in Detroit, and blame for the same is placed on a hundred different sources, any of which MIGHT be correct, but the probabilities are that most or all of them are wrong. Especially is this work shortage true among building tradesmen. When you sit down and study the problem, chances are that you will find that there is not a shortage of work, but a big over supply of workmen. Hundreds of carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers and all of the other building tradesmen have flocked to Detroit and secured work during the marvelous building growth which that city has enjoyed—a growth which probably no other city in the world has ever so freely enjoyed. Possibly it has slackened a bit—reached probably the normal stage, the old cry of "hard times" and "no work" is raised. The farmers of at least three western states are crying for help to harvest their crops and if these men who are crying hard times had saved even a small portion of the heavy salaries that have been paid them in Detroit, they would now be able to go to the place of employment, where there is work in abundance, just as there was in Detroit when they came there. The cry of "hard times" will invariably stand investigation, especially in years when crops are as abundant, as the prospect for 1914.

Old Bill Shiftless is sick (again) and we have been expecting any minute to be taken to task as the direct cause, and all because we published a little notice in the paper a short time ago that men were in great demand in Kansas, and in two or three other western states to help harvest the bumper crops. Bill saw the notice and ignored it—Mrs. Bill saw it too, and sat up and took notice. Forthwith Bill's grip was packed, a ticket procured and Bill started on his way to Osborne county, Kansas, with five dollars in his pocket, supplied by Mrs. Bill, who had just collected a monthly wash bill. Bill caught the car and proceeded on his way, and I really thought that he was going to get a job and work for a couple of months, any way. But late the next evening Bill painfully crawled off the back end of the car and laboriously made his way homeward. Yesterday when I called he was lamenting the fact that his gout had come back on him and that he had been forced to abandon the trip. I wasn't satisfied, however, and a little rose, so went to the kitchen and started in to tell her what a poor boob I thought Bill really was. Right there was where I got in wrong and good and proper, too. Finally Mrs. Bill quieted down a little, dried her tears, and informed me that she had the best husband in the world, and that she loved her so much that he couldn't bear to be away from her. Bill may be a perfect liar and afraid of work, but Mrs. Bill is so easy that I refuse to waste further sympathy on her. It made me so mad that the next time Bill asks what he shall get her for a birthday present, I'm going to suggest a new washboard, in stead of a new hat as I had intended.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Drake are the proud parents of a little baby daughter, who arrived at their home on last Monday evening. All concerned are getting along nicely, and congratulations are in order.

Some persons may be imbued with the idea that it is a joke to break in a new conductor for the interurban lines of the D. U. R., and it may even look easy to the new conductor himself for a few minutes. We watched one of them the other day, learning his A. B. C.'s, and if the pupil and instructor were not having their full share of trouble, then we don't know what trouble is.
