RACE STEEPED IN SERVITUDE

Tragedy of the Wiping Out of the Incas as a Nation is One of the Greatest in History.

What became of the people who built the Cuzco ruins? Were they the ancestors of "those stolid and downtrodden Indians whom one sects they have they made wares in the ancestors of "those stolid and downtrodden Indians whom one secs today peddling their rude wares in the market place of Cuzzo?" Mr. Bryce discusses the question in his "South America." He says: "The sudden fall of a whole race is an event so rare in history that one seeks for explanations. It may be that not only the royal Incs family, but nearly the whole ruling class was destroyed in war, leaving only the peasants, who had already been serfs under their native sovereigns. But one is disposed to believe that the tremendous catastrophe which beful them in the destruction at once of their dynasty, their empire and their religion by fierce comperers, incomparably superior in energy and knowledge, completely bruke not only the spirit of the nation, but the self-respect of the individuals who composed it.

"They were already a docile and submissive people, and now under a new tyranny, far barsher than that of rulers of their own blood, they stake into hopeless apathy and ceased even to remember what their foreinfalters had been. The intensity of their devotion to their sovereign and their delity made them helpless when both were overthrown, leaving them nothing to turn to, nothing to strive for.
