

HERE'S DOOMED CAPITAL OF THE TURK; INHABITANTS FLEE AS ALLIES APPROACH

Here is one of the best views ever taken of Constantinople, capital of Turkey and seat of the Moslem religion for more than 450 years. The picture was taken from the Asian side and shows the famous Bosphorus strait. French, English and Russian fleets are pounding their way toward the city from two directions, and it is generally agreed that it is only a matter of time before Constantinople must fall. The city's inhabitants are now fleeing panic-stricken into Asia Minor.

Household Hints

WORTH KNOWING

Spots on Polished Furniture—Take fine table salt, sprinkle thick enough to cover spot nicely, then saturate well with olive oil; let stand fifteen to twenty minutes, then rub with soft cloth. If it does not remove all the spots, try again. At the first application, try again, but the salt must be as fine as possible.

When cooking one is at to add too much salt. If a piece of bread is thrown in it will take up the salt and can be removed.

Saving School Shoes—Try a good varnish for children's school shoes. Apply to soles of shoes three or four coats of varnish, letting each dry before the next is applied, and see how much longer the shoes will last without half-soiling.

Paste on each bottle or box of poisonous drugs a strip of sandpaper. This can be easily distinguished in the dark.

CANDIES

Delicious Cracker Jack which can be made at home at very little expense—One cup of popping corn and five cents worth peanuts. Pop corn, shell peanuts and put all together in large kettle. Then put in a sauce pan one cup molasses, one cup sugar, one tablespoon vinegar, and a little water. Heat in cold water, then pour mixture over corn and peanuts; mix thoroughly. This forms a candy coating; can be formed into balls or left in chunks.

Walnut Creams (a never-fail candy)—Two cups brown sugar, one cup water, one pinch cream of tartar (to prevent from going into sugar). Put all ingredients in sauce pan on fire. Stir until it boils, then leave to boil until it forms soft ball in cold water. Remove from fire and beat until it hardens. Have large flat plate ready with piece of waxed paper on and another piece of paper to drop your ingredients on. Then take small portion of it in your hands, until ready to serve. An excellent Rich little butter in and roll in a dish and a favorite with the children.

Glimpses of Married Life

When it was barely light, Nell was awakened by a step on the stair, and it flashed upon her that her guest was up. She soon heard her husband's mother vigorously wielding a broom in the living room.

"Well, I guess she won't find much dust; the rugs have not been down two weeks," reflected Nell angrily. She thought of setting up, but Dick was asleep and she dreaded to face the old lady alone. Soon she heard her pouring water and wringing out a cloth.

"She must be cleaning, and the house barely settled." Then it flashed on her that she might be washing the floors that had just been varnished.

Nell slid out of bed and putting on her bathrobe and slippers went out. Madam Morton was on her knees rubbing soap on a cloth preparatory to scouring the new varnish. What should she do?

"Oh! good morning," she called. "You are up early."

"Early!" snorted the old lady. "It must be six o'clock."

She was just ready to plump the soapy rag on the newly varnished floor.

"Please don't put soap on the new varnish, mother; the workmen told me not to touch it with soap."

"It must be a queer sort of a floor that you can't wash with good soap," her mother-in-law exclaimed, her rag poised in air.

"You see, it was varnished only last week," explained Nell in a conciliatory tone. "I keep it waxed and

OUR FAILURE IN GUAM

We Have to Raise Too Much Money on the Little Island.

"There's the devil and the deep sea about our uncommercial conquest, and a big interrogation point at the door of the Treasury." This is the terse way in which Willard French sums up in the Booklovers Magazine his indictment of the federal administration for its failure to look after the people of Guam. Successive governors, Mr. French declares, have done their best, but they cannot accomplish the miracle of increasing benefits on decreasing revenue. Under Spanish rule only one-fifth of the expense of the government was ever collected in the island. Four-fifths was always paid out of the home treasury.

"The cost of living in Guam has been increased several hundred per cent since the American occupation, so that in reality our governors face the necessity today of raising twenty-five times as much money from the people of Guam as was ever demanded before our flag was raised. And this only to meet recurring incidents without a thought of schools, sanitation, or other desirable innovations."

Some one ought to stir up the authorities on this matter or we shall continue to bear the reproach of being worse masters than the Spaniards were, even in their most rapacious days.

boy was learning to ride erect on a quiet horse with a broad, flat back. "In some towns they won't let us show," said the man, "unless we have no camels with us. Camels are a serious drawback to shows. Horses are so much afraid of them that lots of towns won't let a camel enter their gates."

"A horse won't go near a piece of ground a camel has stood on. The very smell of a camel in the air will make a horse tremble and sweat. And this fear isn't only found occasionally in a horse here and there. It is found in every horse all over the world. Queer, isn't it? I often wonder why it is. Cattle hate dogs in the same way, and cats hate dogs so, too. Here, though, we can account for the hatred. Dogs fit primitive times fed on cattle, no doubt, and even today, here and there, they will kill and feed on kittens."

"Horses love dogs. I'm sure I don't know why. Dogs fear no animals but pumas and leopards. You can take a dog into a lion's or a tiger's cage, and he will show no fear; but take him up to the cage of a puma or a leopard, and he will tremble and cower and slink away out of sight."

"All very puzzling, isn't it?"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Service" Leads to Success

There's a certain sense of satisfaction in knowing that my patrons appreciate "service," oftentimes more so than the actual price. When the time comes when one's eyes need attention—and this happens sooner than many anticipate—there must be that unshaken confidence in the optometrist to whom you go for treatment—and the "service" rendered must increase that confidence to satisfaction.

A record of sixteen years with the J. L. Hudson Co. must stand for something in the minds of the Detroit public—and each year shows a steady, healthy growth.

I attribute it to "service"—in advice, in accurate fitting, and in the correct glasses. Prices are always reasonable.
