Announcement

FORD

UNIVERSAL CARS
THE FOLLOWING PRICES F. O. B. DETROIT,
EFFECTIVE AUGUST 2nd, 1915:

Ford Runabout - $390.00
Ford Touring Car - 440.00
Ford Town Car - 640.00

No speedometer included in this year's equipment, otherwise cars fully equipped

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to August 1, 1916.

Profit Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914 we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between August 1, 1914 and August 1, 1915 we would share profits with the retail purchaser, to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car. We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.

The American Home.

In his Thanksgiving proclamation, received this week, Gov. W. N. Ferris has the following:

"The people of the United States are grateful to the Infinite Father for their capacity and disposition to appreciate the bounties of nature. Through this appreciation, man cheerfully applies his labor to the earth in order that her bounties may serve as a means for realizing the essential joys of life. Abundant harvests are simply a necessary means to an end. The measuring unit of life is not to be found in bushels of grain, or potatoes, or fruits, or coal, or copper, or silver, or gold, or houses, or lands, but in the laughter of children around the hearthstone, in the love and loyalty of the home. 'Home is the nation's safety.' In the year nineteen hundred and fifteen, we are grateful for the benediction that rests upon the American home. In the great Commonwealth of Michigan we are, in common with all the other states, the recipients of the richest blessings. It is eminently fitting that we set apart November twenty-fifth as a special day for Thanksgiving—a day on which we may pray for peace on earth, good will to men."

"Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fifth of November, as a day for all the people of this Commonwealth to celebrate in thanksgiving and prayer."

The Minister Was Wrong.

The writer attended church recently in a town upstate—oh, yes, we do sometimes. We heard a good sermon, and felt considerably uplifted.

There was one thing that nettled us, however. The minister warned the people against putting any dependence on what they read in the newspapers.

"We don't know what particular kind of newspaper he had in mind but we believe the reverend gentleman is suffering from limited observation."

If the newspapers warned people to pay no attention to what the preachers say it would sound barbarous, and still their justification would be just the same.

We could not refrain from wishing that this minister could accompany us for a week as we look through the newspapers that come to us.

We believe that we could show him the product of an army of trained minds that are doing a work in their various communities that is as fundamentally important and trustworthy as that of any other agency.

We believe he could find some inspiration in the idealism of the country press of Michigan.

"Idealism" sounds quite high-brow and seems to be far removed from practical everyday matters. Yet such is not the case.

The best work that any man does is done through devotion to an ideal. The real newspaper man has his ideals of what a newspaper should be and what service it should perform, and the best accomplishments of his professional life are attained through fidelity to those ideals.

Of course we are all in the game to earn a living, and a little money besides, if we can, but the real impelling force is not the money.

Looking over last week's papers, for instance, we find that fully one-half of them have devoted space that is worth real money to the home trade cause.

There never was a time when this important fight was receiving such loyal support from the press.

It makes a lot of difference to the churches and the schools and everything else that makes life worth while in your town whether the product of toil is going to the city or staying at home.

We think it is a mighty good time for the people to put dependence in what the newspapers say, and to follow their leadership.

Sensible Suggestions From a Practical Dairyman.

1. Daily grooming of cows, when stalled, with curd ewing and brush insulate, with curd ewing and brush insulate, with curd ewing and brush insulate. It pays to watch carefully the feeding of Dairy Cows.

Milk from cows fed unwholesome food cannot be lawfully sold.

Decayed or mouldy foods should not be used because they are liable to taint the milk. When ensilage, cabbage, turnips, potatoes, etc., are fed they should be given after milking and sparingly to begin with, and never stored in the barn.

2. Fresh water should be supplied to the cows in abundance, and they should have free access to salt.

It Is Not Difficult to Produce Clean Milk.

The sale of delivering of unsanitary or impure milk or cream or the manufacturing of the same into a food product for sale is unlawful.

3. If possible, use the closed top or hooded milk pail which catches only one-third the amount of dirt that the open pail does. After using the hooded pail for two weeks many dairymen prefer it to the open pail. Thousands of milk-ers are now using the hooded pail. The Detroit Board of Health require its use.

4. Use a good strainer. It will tell you whether the milk in your pail is clean or dirty. Milk will not be clean unless some care is taken to keep it from getting dirty. Milk once dirty is always dirty. A fine cloth strainer is best.

The sediment test has proven that a large number of dairymen produce clean milk. Most of the dirt that gets into the milk falls from the cow during the milking. Nearly all of it can be easily kept out of the milk without adding to the cost of production.

5. With a damp cloth wipe the udder and flanks before milking, and if necessary, wash the udder. Avoid raising dust of any kind prior to milking.

6. When milking has been completed remove the milk promptly from the barn and cool it down. Place the cans in a tank containing cold water until they are hauled to the factory or market. Stir the milk at frequent intervals during the first hour.

Never mix fresh, warm milk with cold. It is advisable to have the dairy house separate from the barn. If it is connected with the barn, there should be no direct entrance from the stable portion into the milk house. A cement floor is best and it should be smooth and pitch toward a drain. Under-ground drains should be trapped, otherwise they will discharge foul odors into the milk house.

7. Milk or cream is the finished product of the dairy farm, two crops of which are harvested daily. Common sense will demand that a proper place be provided for storing and cooling of that important crop, so that it may be maintained at its highest value.

9. In washing dairy utensils it is a good plan to first rinse all parts with clean, cold water, then with a brush wash thoroughly in hot water, to which a little washing powder has been added. Then rinse with boiling water and allow each part to drain without being wiped with a cloth.

The inspector, Mr. R. Bolton, from the Agricultural College, Lansing, will soon make a monthly test for Butter Fat, also the sediment test, showing cleanliness.

We want all our patrons' tests good, as bad ones have to be reported to the State and Health Boards, and each one should show up good on Butter Fat and visible dirt.

Will Retain a Bad Odor.

The forty-fifth annual meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural society will be held in Grand Rapids, in the Coliseum, on Dec. 7, 8 and 9. A large exhibition hall has been secured in the same building where there will be an extensive display of spray machinery, spray materials and other horticultural accessories.

The publishers of the Youth's Companion will, as always at this season, present to every subscriber whose subscription is paid for 1916, a calendar for the new year. It is a gem of calendar making. The decorative mounting is rich, but the main purpose has been to produce a calendar that is useful, and that purpose has been achieved.

We have yet to run across anyone who can remember when potatoes were shipped into Milford at this time of year to supply the local demand. The growers who have them are mostly pursuing a "hold on" policy, although a few lots now and then are being brought into the market, and it is possible that later in the season enough may be got together to ship out. But it surely is an unprecedented situation for this vicinity.—Milford Times
