One of the reasons given for the present abundance of money, given by a number of prominent bankers, is the complete suspension of American travel abroad.

ALWAYS GLUED TO A SORT

In Civilized Life the Association of Men of Like Interests is as Essential as Food

In the eighteenth century the map of London passed the largest part of his time in coffee houses and taverns, and when one sought for him after midday he will probably be found in a tavern.

No habit was so universal in every class as this of association in some place of amusement; it was part of the life alike of the nobleman and the tradesman.

While the former enjoyed himself in one or more of his houses in the great end, the latter was surrounded by his business rivals at the Globe Tavern in Fleet street or at the Sixpenny Card club or at the Free and Easy at the Queen's Arms in St. Paul's churchyard.

But when we go with the man of London to his coffee house or tavern we should not think too much of the place, for coffee house and tavern were each only a building which by reason of its existence was the most convenient for the purpose of assemblies, whether of business or of pleasure.

The important fact is the remarkable and constant and often informal association of men of like interests, tastes or occupations for purposes political, commercial, literary or social.

These associations, every one of which is usually called a club, even if it was without rules or officers, sprang rapidly into being from the beginning of coffee houses, so rapidly that places by no means always suitable had to be used for their meetings.

FALLACY OF LONG STANDING

That Frost is Most Likely to Occur in the "Light of the Moon" is a Wrong Idea.

One of the most tenacious beliefs is that the weather is affected by the position of the moon. It is generally considered that frost is more likely to occur in the "light of the moon" than at any other time.

The moon reflects sunlight to the earth and produces the tides. It has a minor effect, such as changing the position of the earth and causing minor deflections of the magnetic needle; these last, are, however, so small that they have only an effect upon the instruments of detection, and it has been proved conclusively these two have no relation to the change of weather.

Regarding the two former effects named, it is easy to see that if the moon reflected sunlight from the moon cannot affect the weather. In the first place, more light is received from the sun in thirty minutes than from the moon in one year; moreover, the greatest reflection is at full moon; from a logical point of view then it should be warmer instead of colder at full moon. This would disprove any argument that the reflected light makes it colder at full moon.

British Emancipation.

The first day of August, 1834, is often mentioned, but erroneously, as the day on which the slaves in the British colonies were set free.

They did not get their actual freedom, but an apprenticeship which was to precede and prepare for their freedom.

It was not until the 1st of August, 1834, that the slaves in the British colonies were set free.

Sorrow comes to all

The great sorrow must come to us all. While we insist that the funeral shall be well appointed and conducted along up-to-date lines we also must make sure that we are not overcharged. One certain method of accomplishing this result is to put us in charge of the arrangements.

There is not such a great amount of happiness in the world, even at the best, that we should risk losing it by our own misdeeds and ill nature. There are many people in life who may be likened to a briar bush, when one comes too near he gets stung by thorns; but each individual should remember that he himself is sometimes thorny and apt to inflict wounds. Therefore, each one should be more lenient toward the other, remembering that the more one strives against such things the deeper they penetrate and the more painful wounds they make. A spark of fire left to itself will eventually die out, but if it is nursed and fuel added, behold, what a great conflagration ensues. Forbearance is the only remedy, and although everyone may not possess the unexampled patience of Job, yet what little they have may be cultivated till things will be made to go smoothly and easily.

The printer has just as good grounds for asking the business men of the town to leave their job work at home as the business man has to ask the community to patronize him instead of the mail order houses. In fact the home paper does more for a town than any other enterprise located therein. Let the business men join hands with the home paper and both their interests will be greatly benefited. We can do your job printing in just as good shape as the "city" office, and at just as good a price. We want your work and if you will give us a trial we will do our best to merit the continuance of your orders. Why not leave it at home this time and give us a chance to please you?

A bill has been introduced in congress by W. Frank James, of the 12th Michigan congressional district, amending the present pension law, so that no officer or enlisted man who ever deserted from an enlistment in the U. S. navy, army or marine corps and was apprehended, and by court martial decision was dishonorably discharged from the service, shall be entitled to a pension under any law. It is claimed that under the present law it is possible for a man to 'enlist, desert, be apprehended, court martialled, found guilty, sentenced, serve his sentence, be dishonorably discharged, and still be eligible to receive a pension for disabilities incurred while on duty in the service.

Education City Girls Miss. City girls of any class rarely if ever have any domestic education or training, unless they get it in their schools. They are taught the boundaries of the United States and the source of the Nile; they learn that if you buy products at a certain price and sell at a higher you make money, but what to do with the money when you make it no one discusses. It is all making money on things, never a cent is paid to the owners of these slaves, this sum being distributed ratably according to the market price of slaves in each colony.

Nova Scotia's History. When discovered by the British in 1497-98 Nova Scotia was not named. A few years later it was settled by the French who called it Acadia. It passed to the English by the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713, and they changed the name from Acadia to Nova Scotia. This name was first used in a grant made by King James I, who was born in Scotland, and chose a name in honor of his native country. The royal grant under the name was made to Sir William Alexander, a Scotchman, who wrote poor poetry, and was created Lord Stirling by King James.
