BOOSTING!

Would you like to be thought stronger and more resourceful than the average man? Would you like to have others admire you and look up to you? The recipe is simple. Have something good to say about everybody, about your neighbor, and about your town. Boost, even if you have to go out of your way to boost. Lend a helping hand. Have some word of encouragement always ready for the fellow who is down on his luck. People will think that you can afford to do it; that you are so successful and so prosperous that you can see only good in everything. It is the man with the petty grievance—the small man—who knocks. Remember that, and try to be above small things. A good deal of the old feudal idea still remains. The ancient lords could afford to be magnanimous. Their motto was "Noblesse oblige." Their nobility gave them certain responsibilities. They were the leaders. People looked up to them and depended on them. That "Noblesse oblige" is a good motto to adopt today, even when there are no hereditary lords. It is a motto that the every-day man can adopt and profit by. If you keep boosting everywhere you go, others will unconsciously recognize in you a leader. They will put you down as a man who helps because he is stronger than others. If you don't believe this, try it for awhile and see if it's not so.

By a new process in glass manufacturing the dangers from flying glass in automobile and trolley and railroad accidents, etc., are practically obviated. A thin sheet of transparent celluloid is laid between two sheets of ordinary glass and the three sheets are firmly united by chemical agents under heavy pressure. The product, known as "triplex" glass, will break and crack but it is tough and cannot be shattered into fragments like ordinary glass.

In the weekly grind of news-gathering we have come to the conclusion that about nine out of ten persons fail to recognize a bit of news when they meet it face to face. If you know of anyone that has died, eloped, married, divorced, left town, had a fire, or a baby, absconded, embezzled, sold a farm, cracked a safe, come to town, bought a home, committed suicide, been assassinated, fallen from an aeroplane that is news, and we want it.

The discovery of a substitute for gasoline, to be sold at 1 1/2 cents a gallon, is asserted by Louis H. Rich, chemist, of New York. He says that by mixing two ounces of a secret solution with a quart of water a compound susceptible to explosions, similar to gasoline, can be obtained. Enrich says he has demonstrated that the mixture will run an automobile. "In simplified form," he declared, "my discovery may be explained by extracting hydrogen from water."

Announcements of Villa's death are not borne out by circumstances. The rate at which he is traveling is altogether too rapid for a funeral.

Many a man fails to hear the knock of opportunity because he is busy doing a little "knocking" on his own account.

No man ever attains such a high position but what some one will "call him down."
