He Removed the Danger Signal

Frank W. Sherman, Lagoon, N. Y., writes: "I suffered with kidney trouble, had a throbbing in my back, did not have any ambition and felt all tired out. I used Foley Kidney Pills and in a few days began to feel better, and now I am entirely recovered and have had no return of my painful symptoms. One cannot help becoming nervous and feeling tired and worn out when the kidneys fail to filter and throw out of the system the poisonous waste matter that causes kidney troubles and bladder ailments. Backache is one of Nature's danger signals that the kidneys are clogged up and inactive. It is often followed by rheumatism, aches, pains, urinary disorders, puffing swellings under the eyes, swollen ankles and painful joints. Foley Kidney Pills get right at the source of trouble. They loosen the kidneys to healthy action and when the kidneys properly perform their function the poisonous waste matter is eliminated from the system."

The Vicious Anti-Injunction Proposal

TAKE the protection of the law away from a non-employer's property! Make it possible to destroy the employer's factory and his goods if he does not accede to any demand made upon him! Tie and gag the circuit judge to prevent him from coming to the assistance of workers upon whom felonious assault is being made! Mole the employer and all his defenders, but do not let the law intervene! These are the pretexts and the demands of organized labor in Michigan today.

A referendum petition is being circulated throughout the state for a constitutional amendment taking away from the judges the right to issue an injunction in labor disputes. Were this amendment to become part of our constitution, it would be impossible for the employer to appeal to the court for protection, though a mob of strikers were assaulting his workmen, preventing the employment of other help, destroying his property and ruining his goods. The amendment would make it impossible for him to stay the hand of the mob until such time as an amicable agreement could be entered upon or the difficulties adjusted.

Organized labor would have it that a private individual, apprehensive of injury to his property or person, might avail himself of the protection of an injunction; but if an employer, in dispute with his men, no matter how imminent the danger to his life, limb or property, this prohibitory protection should be unavailable.

The injunction, admits organized labor, makes it possible for the employer to hire whom he will; conduct his own business as he deems it should be operated; exercise his rights as a free-born American citizen. Such is the complaint of organized labor against the law.

Counsel for organized labor even goes so far as to preach the vicious doctrine to the militant union, that in substance the law as administered today compels a man to work for whatever wage an employer wishes to pay him; compels him to submit to any and all conditions his employer may take a notion to impose upon him. Note for instance the statements of one Maurice Sugar, who is a lawyer, according to Detroit Labor News. In a recent address to the Detroit Federation, he said:

Probably 99 out of a thousand men in Michigan today think that the workmen have a right to strike, but he hasn't. The law of Michigan doesn't give him the right to strike. No law taking that right away has been passed, but the courts have made it.

Farmers, who live near and are patrons of the D. U. R. will be interested in the announcement that the company have adopted a standard type of shelter station. It is built of galvanized iron and will have a concrete floor. The company has placed an order for 25 of such stations for immediate delivery.

It makes no difference if the picket line done be ten or a thousand feet away. If it comes to a show down it will not matter if the picket is five miles away if it is necessary to beat the strike.

In striking labor can only win by violating the law. As a lawyer I'm not supposed to say you should break the law, but I want to see labor win.

Let's assume that violence is used in a strike. Is one not entitled to one man or must he sneak up to one man—a judge.

The courts are the law bulwark in this fight and they'll construe laws they are to decide unless we make it absolutely clear that they can't issue injunctions.

Much of the viciousness of this amendment lies in the fact that the lawyer must have known, or at any rate should have known, that he was dangerously misleading his hearers. He must have known that he was falsely interpreting the law. He should have known that he was inciting his hearers to lawlessness and disregard for the very courts that have time and time again conserved the interests of the very men to whom he was preaching.

There is absolutely not a word or suggestion in the laws of the state of Michigan that prevents any man or body of men from quitting work in any shop or plant anywhere in the state. The law does, however, seek to protect the employer against the violence of an aggression of men who see fit to leave his employ.

There is absolutely nothing in the laws of Michigan that prevents one man from seeking to dissuade another from continuing in a certain man's employ, provided he does so by peaceful and lawful means. The law does, however, prohibit a set of men from intimidating one who wishes to continue his employment, assaulting him and perhaps taking his very life.

The laws of the state of Michigan give the employer the right to hire whom he pleases, just as they give the workman the right to choose his employer and place of employment. The law does not countenance violence during a strike or at any other time, and if organized labor adherents are guilty of using violence, should they have the right to demand that they be exempt from the law on the ground that it is their employer's property at which they are directing such violence?

If a court admonishes a man or body of men to cease using violence, destroying property and assaulting workers, and the injunction is disregarded, should it be necessary for that court to call in a jury of twelve men to pass on the guilt that is admitted? But, says Mr. Sugar, it is not a question of guilt; the guilt is self-evident. The proposition is to go to fix the law that such violence cannot be interfered with.

The ranks of organized labor are filled in the main with honest, conscientious, industrious, patriotic workmen. In their very hearts the vast majority of these men have a deep respect for the majesty of the law and for the property rights of an individual, be he an employer or not. The deplorable thing is that they will listen to unscrupulous agitators; that they permit themselves to be led by men who are no respecters of law and order and who preach violence and spread discontent.

In the ranks of organized labor in Michigan today are thousands of men who if the nation issued a call to arms to avenge the wrongs committed against American citizens on American soil by the Mexicans, would lay down their tools and take up arms in defense of their flag. Yet the Labor News deliberately insults their intelligence and belittles their patriotism, and also insults the colored men who have enrolled for service under the stars and stripes, by publishing this statement:

African troops are marching into Mexico. Will this be the beginning of a war of conquest? A cry is already going up for the annexation of part of Mexico. Who wants it? Otis, that "grey wolf," that notorious open shopper of Los Angeles, and his pet son-in-law, Chandler.

It is time that organized labor throw off the galling yoke.
