Novelties in Dress Accessories.

Among the most distinctive novelties presented for evening wear are bright little capes trimmed with white maroon. They are made of chiffon velvet, tulle, or satin. The gay colors that are used for evening wraps, and make very useful substitutes for these more ambitious garments. Turquoise and other light blues, orchid, gold, rose, and new shades of green make charming combinations with wide bands of maroon.

The cape shown in the picture is of light blue tulle and is simply a straight strip of the silk gathered to a band on each edge. The long ties at the front are made of strips of silk, finished with pleat edge, and fasten the cape with a big bow of two loops. The nearest amateur in sewing can manage a cape of this kind. They are useful to throw about the shoulders at the tea-dance, between dances, or anywhere that a scarf is needed.

Besides capes made as pictured, there are heavier ones in darker velvets trimmed with fur, for wear with afternoon and street gowns. In these the velvet, or fur fabric, is not gathered but is flat and sometimes interlined. Dark maroon and fur bandings finish them and they are fastened with ties of soft ribbon matching them in color, or with silk cords. They are shaped like the small flat capes of fur which came in as a new feature in fur fashions in the present season.

There are as many small fancy neckpieces in fur and velvet as there are little capes. Most of them muffle up the neck in the approved fashion, and are worn with muffs to match. They suggest a good use for fur garments or sets that are partly worn and must be either made over or cut up into bands for trimming. Fur handbags are used on dresses, hats, bags, and all sorts of wraps.

Costume Blouse of Crepe de Chine.

The always popular crepe de chine and crepe georgette in blouses might lose interest, if interest were not constantly stimulated by variations in style. Both materials are presented in models made to wear with tailored suits, in less simple ones for formal afternoon suits, and in wonderful costume blouses that rivet the attention on themselves.

The blouse of crepe de chine shown here belongs to the last-mentioned class. It is made with open throat and fastens at the side under the collar. The full sleeves are gathered into narrow cuffs. Two buttons, with simple front, two others appear on the grille and one on each cuff. All buttonholes are worked with dark-colored silk.

This clever management of the fastenings is in harmony with the very handsome embroidery, of the Egyptian motif, which appears at each side of the front. Fine needlework counts for so much in blouses of all kinds, and it is a pretentious feature of the costume blouse.

Some new and very beautiful models are of plain and figured georgette crepe, and consist of an underblouse

COULD TRUST HIS MEMORY

Mr. Wananmaker Able to Turn at Once to Any Book of His Miles of Shelves.

A couple of weeks ago John Wananmaker did something which he said he had not done before in his 32 years' experience as a merchant. He opened his store on Sunday. That will interest you even less than something else which Mr. Wananmaker did that afternoon and which was told me by one of the dozen persons who were present, writes "Girard" in the Philadelphia Public Ledger. There had been a dinner for a party of distinguished Japanese visitors, and Mr. Wananmaker volunteered to show the oriental gentlemen the inside of his store.

Before departing from the big granite building Mr. Wananmaker said to the chief guest:

"Baron, there is a book here I wish you to have."

Naming another book, Mr. Wananmaker walked to another case and got it. Then he proceeded to present to each gentleman present a volume or two, in each instance naming what he intended to give before he went to a bookshelf to get it. Which feat of memory caused my informant to remark when he related the incident to me:

"I have seen John Wananmaker do a great many extraordinary things in 40 years, but his ability to pick here and there a book out of many thousands amazed me the most."

Carried Boy on Got Fifteen Miles.

When a physician at Red Oak, Tex., found that Robert Anderson, nine years old, had appendicitis, 20 men volunteered to carry the boy on his cot 15 miles to a hospital, where he received an operation. The men took their turns at the cot.

Men are inclined to boast, yet according to statistics three out of four are buried at somebody else's expense.

HADN'T BORED GLADSTONE

Statesman, in Fact, Thoroughly Enjoyed Himself While "Heavy" Recitation Was Rendered.

Sir Charles Wyndham, the actor, was once asked to exploit a certain reciter and gave an "at home" for the purpose, at which Gladstone was present. It was a terribly hot afternoon, and the reciter announced that he would give "Eloise," by Lord Tennyson. After the recital Sir Charles went to Gladstone and said, "I'm afraid you've had a trying time with all this heat."

"Not at all," was the reply. "I have had a charming afternoon. I thank you for asking me, and now as I am quite refreshed I can run back to the house."

Sir Charles was elated for the rather heavy "Eloise" had been a success after all. He rushed to the stage, where he found his guests waiting for him and for tea.

"What have we done to you," they cried, "to give us 'Eloise' on a day like this? Surely there was something lighted to choose."

"Lighter?" echoed Sir Charles. "That's the trouble with you society people—you're all so frivolous. I gave you a classic treat. Why, Gladstone has just told me he had a delightful afternoon."

"Of course he had," was the rejoinder, "for he was asleep all the time."

Are They Really Masters?

"Can you tell me where the prohibition of bigamy is referred to in the Bible?" asked a Sunday school teacher of small children.

Willie immediately answered: "Yes, teacher. 'No man can serve two masters.'"
