Harvesting Of Seaweed Saving Oakland Lakes

PONTIAC About 1,000 tons of greenery have been harvested from 10 Oakland County lakes this past summer in an effort to save weed-infested waters.

The clean-up was accomplished with a $40,000 self-propelled aquatic weed harvester purchased last spring by the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

The machine cuts and removes nutrient-rich seaweed, explains County Drain Commissioner George W. Kuhn, and is an alternative to the previously unsound dependence on chemical herbicides to control excessive growth.

A load of seaweed harvested is a load permanently removed from the lake, Kuhn adds, even though a growth which is killed will recycle its nutrients back to the water, stimulating a greater regrowth the following year.

Harvesting is a method of nutrient-extraction to reverse the normal aging, or "eutrophication" cycle and results to permanently younger and less weed-infested lakes.

During this summer, the harvester operated on Watkins, White, Pine, Gilbert, Pleasant, Meadowlake, Tommys, Greens, Lower Long Lake, Pine and Morris lakes.

Kuhn said the harvester was billed out at a lower rate of $40 per hour this summer, operating for a total of 415 chargeable hours. This will return to the county, he adds, $4,150 or $10 an hour as budgeted to repay the original purchase price of the equipment.

The year before, Kuhn says, a $2,200 loss was reported by contracting for use of the machine at a $50 per hour charge.

On the 395-acre Pine Lake, the harvester removed some one million pounds of wet aquatic weeds from the lake's ecosystem in 28 days.

Being a "kettle" lake (without an inlet or outlet), the removal represented several years cumulative inflow of nutrients from the surrounding watershed. The removal leaves the lake "younger" than before the harvesting.

In prior years, Pine Lake residents used chemical herbicides to maintain the recreational utility of the water. An analysis of the lake had uncovered sterile areas in the shallower bay and a great decline in water clarity.
