

C'ville alters school hours at the request of parents

Clarenceville School District's new hours, which went into effect this week, were brought about by the request of the majority of parents, Supt. David McDowell said.

"This new schedule, which gives later starting times to the elementary schools and alters the high school and junior high school hours, was worked out by the board. Every parent in the district, approximately 1,700 families, was sent a questionnaire listing the proposed new hours," McDowell said.

They were asked to vote either for the new hours, for the retaining of the old hours or that they favored either way.

"We received about 1,152 returns with 650 families favoring the new hours, 292 preferring to 'keep the old hours, and 206 voting that either way was all right with them."

McDowell said that because high school and junior high school students attend the Oakland Vocational Center, earlier hours for these schools weren't feasible.

New starting hours for Westbrook, Botsford and Grandview schools will be 9:05 a.m. with dismissal at 3:15 p.m. Starting hours at Edgewood school are at 9:25 a.m. with dismissal at 3:35 p.m.

Previous hours for the elementary schools were at 8:20 a.m. for Westbrook and Grandview, and 8:40 for Botsford and Edgewood.

New hours for the high school are 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Junior high hours are 8:25 a.m. to 2:50 p.m.

McDowell said that on or about Feb. 15, the school district will run a new survey with parents to see if they want to keep the daylight saving hours permanently or return to the original schedules. If parents prefer the old hours, the schedule will change March 11.

Glusac to leave Detroit post for SEMCOG role

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) has announced the appointment of Michael M. Glusac as the organization's new executive director. Glusac currently is corporation counsel for the City of Detroit and he will remain in that position through January. He will join SEMCOG about Feb. 1.

Glusac replaces James L. Trainor, who resigned as SEMCOG executive director last month.

Glusac was selected by the SEMCOG review and selection committee from more than 50 candidates who applied for the position. The selection was approved at a special executive committee meeting.

"We are confident that we made the best choice," said SEMCOG Chairman Homer Case. "He has been active with SEMCOG since its beginning and he has a brilliant understanding of the organization as well as a thorough knowledge of regional planning and problem solving."

Glusac brings to his new position a long list of public service activities.

Prior to his position with Detroit, he held public office in Highland Park, where he was born and raised. In 1963, he was elected a Highland Park councilman. In 1965, he was elected mayor of that city and in 1968, he was elected the city's council president.

During that period he also served one year on the Wayne County board of supervisors.

Glusac was appointed Detroit corporation counsel in February 1970, by former Detroit Mayor Roman S. Gribbs.

In that position he has been in charge of a 70-person staff of lawyers and support personnel who handle all legal matters for the City of Detroit.

Plan clinic for string players

Oakland University is offering free instruction on string instruments at a Saturday, Jan. 26, music clinic at the university. Junior high, high school, and junior college students are invited.

The program will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon in Warner Hall. The clinic is the first in a Saturday series running Jan. 26 through Feb. 23. Instructors are applied music faculty members at OU and members of either the Detroit Symphony or Detroit Metropolitan Orchestras.

The instructors and their instruments: Derek Francis, violin; LeRoy Fenstermacher, viola; Mario Di Fiore, violoncello; Robert Gladstone, double bass; and Robert Reberger, classical guitar.

Francis, Fenstermacher, Di Fiore and Gladstone are all members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Reberger is a member of the Detroit Metropolitan Orchestra.

Additional clinics: Jan. 19, woodwinds, brass and percussion; Jan. 26, early music; Feb. 2, jazz; Feb. 16, composition; Feb. 23, piano and voice.

gal matters for the City of Detroit.

Glusac has been active with SEMCOG since the organization began. He was a member of the Metropolitan Council of One Hundred, the group that formed and launched SEMCOG in 1968.

While a Highland Park elected official, he served as the city's SEMCOG delegate. He was a member of SEMCOG's executive committee from 1966 to 1970, and served as a SEMCOG General Assembly alternate for Mayor Gribbs.

"This position will allow me to concentrate on my longstanding interest in SEMCOG and Southeast Michigan, its problems and their solutions," said Glusac. "I view the assignment as a challenge and as an opportunity, and I shall seek the participation, cooperation and assistance of local officials throughout the region in the process," he added.

Glusac earned his B.A. from Wayne State University. In 1966, he earned his juris doctor's degree from Wayne State University Law School. He is a member of the State Bar of Michigan and is currently serving an elected term with the bar as an assembly representative.

SEMCOG is a voluntary association of governments composed of elected officials from 94 communities in southeast Michigan. Its principal function is to develop and coordinate region-wide planning for land use, transportation, recreation and open space, water supply, sewage disposal, storm drainage and housing.
