School board approves support for recreation

By DIANE HUBEL

FARMINGTON — A request by the Farmington Area Recreation Commission to use eight school buses and the multi-purpose rooms of eight elementary schools was approved by the Farmington School Board.

The recreation commission was also given permission to use certain pieces of equipment such as bats and balls for a limited time until it could purchase its own.

Board member William R. Corliss said, "We are pleased to be able to participate in this matter. It is in line with our community-school concept and gives the taxpayers extra value for their tax dollars."

In other action:

The board approved the graduation lists of Harrison, Farmington and North Farmington High Schools, contingent upon completion of all requirements.

School Supt. Marinus Van Ameyde said that he would give public recognition to the fact that all the board members have indicated they will be attending all three graduation ceremonies if possible.

He said, "Their interest in the students is tremendous and should not go unrecogized."

The board also told that Mrs. Natalie Thompson, Supervisor of Food Services has given notice that she will resign her position at the close of the school year.

Mrs. Thompson has been with the school district for 13 years.

Mrs. Marie Belluci has been appointed to temporarily fill the position of supervisor of data processing following the resignation of Edward Aufbusch. Mrs. Belluci has been employed with the data processing department since 1970.

O.U. bargains with 3 unions

ROCHESTER — Oakland University (O.U.) is continuing contract negotiations with the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and two other unions on campus.

According to Colleen Dolan, O.U.'s employment relations officer, contract talks with the AAUP, Clerical-Technical Union and Police Officers Association began in late April.

THE 30-member faculty is negotiating an almost totally new contract. The current contract expires in August.

Miss Dolan said all economic and non-economic issues are open for bargaining; however, the school's arbitration clause remains in effect. The clause says that issues which cannot be settled at the table will go to an arbitrator.

Last year, an arbitrator suggested the final selection to settle the contract talks. Final selection means that the arbitrator will take one side's final offer. Last year, the faculty received a 4.7 percent pay increase but failed to get the student-faculty ratio lowered and to get a book budget for the library. However, professional development leaves for library faculty were granted.

Miss Dolan declined to reveal the details of the talks with the AAUP. The no-strike clause in the contract will expire with the current contract.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH the Clerical-Technical Union (CTU) have also begun but officials have refused to comment on the details of the talks.

The 225 union members are currently working under a one-year contract which expires June 30. Marlin Stroud, CTU president, said the union does not want to make any of its demands, which are the usual things, public at this time. Last year, union members received a 6.5 percent pay increase with added fringe benefits.

The Police Officers Association submitted contract proposals April 30. The officers are finishing the first year of a three-year contract. Miss Dolan said the officers are allowed to negotiate two economic issues and open two non-economic issues at the tables this year.

According to Officer Larry Johnson the group is asking for a five percent pay increase and for equipment for public safety cars. Non-economic demands are for a 10-hour work day and rearranging the schedule to allow officers four consecutive days off.

The officers are also asking that the university allow overtime for police officers working at special events.

Johnson said the contract proposals include a demand that only the 12 public safety officers be used for the special events.

Vandals force school repairs

By Diane Hubel

FARMINGTON — The glass panels on the gymnasium wall at North Farmington High School which have been destroyed by vandals will be replaced with fluted concrete block in an effort to prevent further vandalism.

At its Tuesday night meeting, the Farmington School Board awarded a contract for the work to the Chesterfield Building Company, Asst. Supt. Lawrence Freedman told the board the vandalism had occurred over a long period of time, adding that vandalism in the area is slight compared to that suffered in other districts.

ACCORDING TO the memo distributed to the board members by the director of plants and services, the fluted concrete block will add to the thermal qualities and provide a durable surface in the gymnasium without destroying the aesthetic qualities.
