

State campgrounds are generally filled during the summer but there are numerous private ones available. If you plan to stay for more than four days try the new reservation system for state park campsites.

Application forms are available through the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) either in Lansing or at the Detroit office, phone 868-1640.

This is the first year of operation for the DNR's new plan for holding half of the available state park campsites for reservation only between May 15 and Labor Day.

If you plan to stay less than four days the old first come-first served plan is still in effect.

On the Keweenaw Peninsula there are ghost towns and copper mines to visit. Dad's may want to visit Laurium, the hometown of football great, George Gipp.

He was the inspiration for Knute Rockne's famous remark, "Win this one for the Gipper."

Hiking trails criss-cross Porcupine Mountain State Park with varying lengths and degrees of challenge. The one leading to Lake of the Clouds is definitely worth the effort.

But if you really don't feel like you've had a vacation unless you've left the state, try Ohio's Marblehead Peninsula.

In addition to camping at Catawba and Kelley's Island State Parks there are private campgrounds including the one at Cedar Point.

Ferry trips to Put-in-Bay and Kelley's Island, a short drive to the confederate prison site and cemetery on Johnson's Island, African Safari with wild animals loose and you caged up as well as a day at Cedar Point will make time fly.

Latest predictions from local and national authorities seem to assure plenty of gasoline. However, it is only smart to save energy and money with a few preparations.

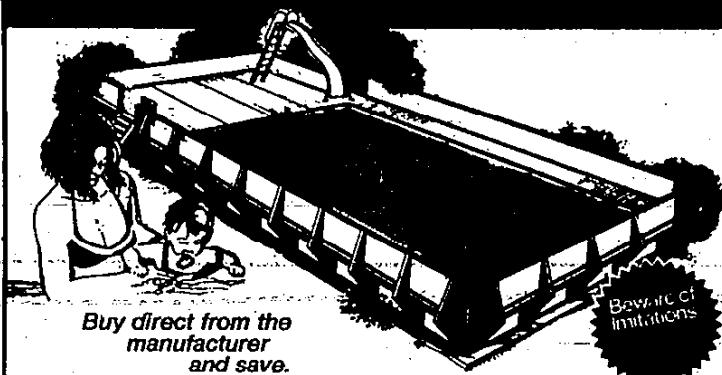

A properly tuned car will pay back the cost of new parts in increased gasoline mileage.

Careful driving adds miles to the gallons. Not only will you be safer at 50 mph but you'll save money, too. Remember to downshift before starting long or sharp climbs before the automatic transmission does it for you.

Reducing your speed to 40 mph when towing a trailer in a high wind will not only save gasoline but wear on the tow car tires.
