

Busing decision still up in the air

By BARBARA UNDERWOOD

It's the biggest non-news story of the year. It's been a cliff-hanger almost daily for weeks and unless it comes this week the agony of waiting may go on for several more weeks . . . or months.

It's the U.S. Supreme Court's decision on cross-district busing to achieve racial integration between Detroit and 52 suburban school districts. When it will happen is anybody's guess . . . and everybody's at this point.

THE SUPREME Court, originally scheduled to recess for the summer on June 17, has continued in session, with the busing decision anticipated daily.

But it didn't happen and the court recessed for a breather before hearing the Watergate case on Monday (July 8) and . . . maybe . . . handing down the busing decision.

But Monday came and went . . .

and Tuesday . . . and Wednesday . . . and Thursday . . . and Friday . . . and every day the word came that the decision "could be today."

Theories about the delay are as numerous as the people consulted but one thing appears to be fact . . . the court has made its decision on busing.

The court is expected to hand down its decision in the Watergate case and then recess until the start of the next court term in October.

WHETHER OR not the busing decision comes before fall is anybody's guess.

The daily waiting game has not been played quite so avidly by William M. Saxton, an attorney representing 31 of the suburban school districts included in the original busing plan of U.S. District Court Judge Stephen Roth, because Saxton does not anticipate the court's decision before October.

He believes a large part of the delay in handing down the decision is because of opinions being written by the justices.

"No one but the judges themselves really know when it will be released," he said Friday, "but I think it is unlikely before October."

Saxton hastened to add that he had "no way of knowing and no one else does either." He said he was guessing along with the man on the street.

Under normal procedure, the court decides a case in secret session on the Friday after arguments are heard, Saxton explained.

THE HIGH COURT heard oral arguments and received briefs in the case late in February.

The interval from then until the present is "not an inordinate amount of time to decide such an important case," Saxton said.

He believes a large part of the delay in handing down the decision is because of opinions being written by the justices.

"There could be from one to nine opinions," he said. "They have to choose their words with care because what they say becomes the supreme law of the land. The opinion writing process is a very important and difficult job."

"Because of the impact the decision will have on the lives of so many people, they haven't rushed to get their opinions out," he added.

THE DEATH last week of former Chief Justice Earl Warren "probably threw a kink in their timetable," Saxton said, but he does not think Judge Roth's death Thursday (July 11) will have any effect on the opinions which are being written.

Many area school officials, perhaps tired of the waiting game, were out of their offices Friday but Dr. David Spencer, director of secondary education for the Bloomfield Hills School District, said he thought the supreme court justices had "put their priorities into the Watergate situation and as a result are delaying their actions on this."

"My best observation is that once Watergate is complete, they will give their decision (on busing) this summer," Spencer added.

Robert Peterson, attorney with Dickinson, Wright, McKean and Cudlip, representing the Bloomfield Hills School District, said, "It must have been a very close, hard decision for them (judges)."

The decision could still be delivered this week, he believes, but added, "We have no way of knowing."

And the wait continues.

Renew trust in officials says Levin

In a Wednesday radio address to the people of the 17th Congressional District, Joseph Levin, Democratic candidate for the nomination for that seat, called for a re-establishment in the trust in elected officials and pledged he would conduct himself in a trustworthy manner if elected.

"We will never restore trust in our public officials until candidates stop talking in generalities that have no practical meaning and, indeed, are not intended to have practical meaning," Levin said.

Levin set down guidelines by which he would act if he were elected in the five minute address over WWJ radio.

Levin is one of six candidates vying for the Democratic nomination in the Aug. 6 primary.

Fundraiser set for Straus

A fundraising cocktail party for Kathleen Straus, a Democratic candidate for the 17th Congressional District nomination, will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, July 16, in the Shilohs Hotel in Southfield.

The fundraiser will be sponsored by Mary Ball, Golda Krolik and Irene Fogarty of Detroit; Beatrice Rowe of Southfield and Maynard Gordon of Farmington. Tickets will be $25 per person.

A wine tasting event for Miss Straus also will be sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gendelman of Southfield on Friday, July 19. Tickets for this event are available at $10 per person. For further information concerning either event contact Maxine Rose, 33301 W. Eight Mile Rd.

Barry worries Democrats

By SUSAN L. SILK

OAKLAND COUNTY — When candidates filed their petitions last month, county political wags joked about Daniel W. Barry who is seeking the Democratic nomination for county executive on the Aug. 6 primary ballot.

But now the laughter has died down and Democrats admittedly are worried, according to Bernard Wingrad, Democratic Party executive secretary.

"If enough people don't know who Daniel Barry is on election day he will win," Wingrad predicted.

BARRY served as a Republican drain commissioner on Oakland County for 15 years before he was removed from office on a 1971 conflict of interest charge.

The conflict of interest conviction was overturned by the Michigan Court of Appeals recently. However Barry still faces felony charges of misuse of public funds, conspiracy and bribery as a result of a 1971 citizen's grand jury investigation.

Barry ran for the drain commissioner post again as an unendorsed Republican in 1972 and was defeated in the primary.

5 honored

Five are residents at Ferris State College in Big Rapids were honored for scholastic excellence during the spring quarter by being named to the Academic Honors List. To qualify, a student must earn at least a 3.25 average (4.0-A) with 14 credit hours. The students are:

Laurie Hoch, 30314 11 Mile, Farmington; Jean Miltello, 30054 Orchard Lake, Farmington; David Ditchfield, 22301 Lee Wright, Southfield; Catherine Whorff, 27111 Charles Court, Southfield and David Wall, 29858 Fall River, Southfield.

Since 1972 Barry has not been active politically. His filing for the county executive race as a Democrat surprised members of both major political parties.

Barry will oppose Eugene W. Kuthy of Orchard Lake, a management consultant, and the Democratic Party's choice for the executive post.

KUTHY is relatively unknown by the voters despite his active participation in Democratic politics and membership in several legal associations, the Oakland County Planning Commission, Pontiac Urban League and several Oakland Community College committees.

"Barry's name, for whatever reason, is better known than Gene Kuthy's who has never run for an office before," Wingrad said.

"We must make sure that everybody knows who Dan Barry is and who Gene Kuthy is on election day," he added.

The party executive said however that he "does not believe" the popular theory that the amount of negative publicity a candidate receives means nothing as "long as you spell his name right."

"NOBODY could believe it," said Republican caucus chairman Wilbur V. Brotherton, referring to Barry's candidacy. Brotherton is a county commissioner from Farmington.

"The way he left office was something we couldn't be proud of," he said, adding that the Republicans would have been upset if Barry had sought to enter the race on their ticket.

"With the way that department (the drain commission) was run under his direction it's impossible for me to believe that the voters of Oakland County would want to let him run the entire county," Brotherton said.
