

Why private campgrounds have advantages

Although state park campgrounds, 41 rent on-site trailers usually on a daily or weekly basis.

Renting a trailer at a campground is an especially good idea for anyone who wants to try recreational vehicle camping for the first time. In most cases, private campgrounds furnish such basic equipment as cooking utensils, requiring only that renters bring linens.

Even RV owners may be interested in renting trailers—especially if planning a short trip to a location far from home—to save the extra fuel needed to tow camping units.

Auto Club's survey of private campgrounds also shows that a growing number are offering RV storage services, not only as a result of gas shortages, but because of the trend toward overnight camping.

Lakeshore, near Cross Village in the northwest Lower Peninsula, is one private campground offering both RV rental and storage.

For a rental tent camper sleeping up to eight, Lakeshore charges $12 a day or $75 a week. Camper units are equipped with kitchen facilities. The fee for a fully-equipped, 20-foot trailer sleeping up to seven persons is $15 a day or $85 a week.

Lakeshore's average rate for RV storage is $1 a day during the summer season, 50 cents a day between Labor Day and Nov. 1 and during May, and a maximum of $50 for storage during the winter months.

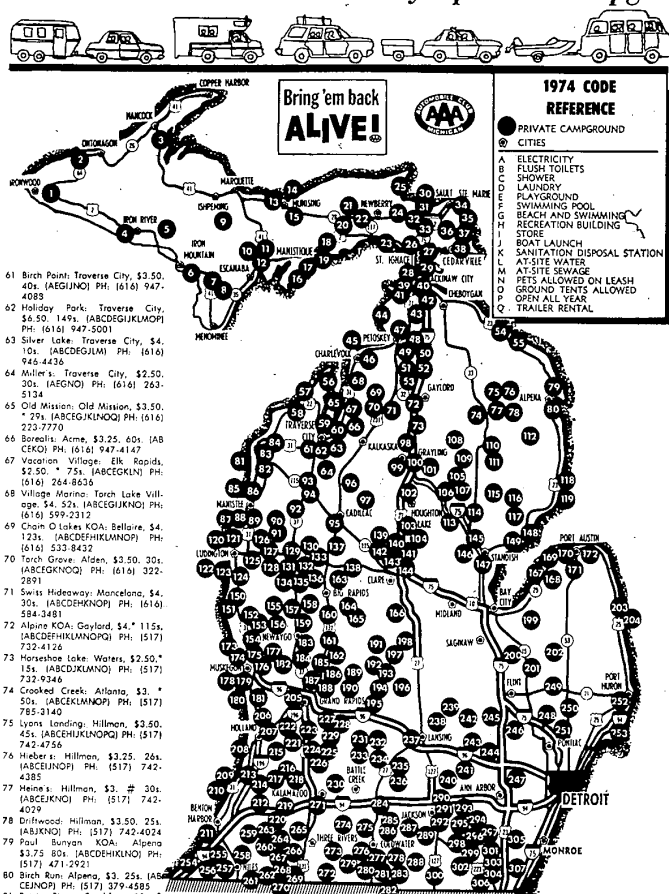

Altogether the 307 parks listed in Auto Club's 1974 guide offer 24,513 campsites—about two per cent more than last year's total.

"It appears that private campground construction is leveling off," Ratke said, noting that in 1972 and 1973 Michigan's number of private campground spaces grew by 25 per cent and 19 per cent, respectively.
