

NIGHT FLIGHT

The shimmer of last year's night life may have dulled but elegance in dressing has brightened considerably.

Night-flight attire is sophisticated and refined. And familiar gobs of rhinestones are unnecessary on this season's flight plan.

Rather, meet your plane in soft chiffons, pleated or sheer; creamy velvets, smooth satins and an occasional jersey.

Design your way into the evening in ankle length or just below-the-knee dresses, pajamas or big skirts with blouses.

Add a fur-trimmed sweater for stylish warmth.

The glimmer of the season arrives in muted form. Embroidery, single threads or beading is subtle, not dominant.

Rhinestones, when seen, are either a simple strand at the waist or intricate patterns on sleeves and necklines. Occasionally, entire sequined designs fly in, but they aren't regularly scheduled.

Feathers still have a reserved space at necklines, hems, cuffs or on their own, as wraps. And Pauline Trigere has trimmed one velvet gown in fur.

Lace trims will also be important.

Unusual evening elegance in camel chiffon

Make reservations for your evening journey now—so there is plenty of time to accessorize the simple elegance of 1974-75 evenings.

Satin brocade and pleated elegance

LILLY PULITZER

*Lilly's Winter
Line is in!*

*Men's, Women's,
Children's Apparel
Maternity, and Boutique Items*

51 West Long Lake Rd.
Bloomfield Hills
Phone 645-1790

Exclusive
Fall
Bridal Fashions

Boulevard

BRIDAL SALON
1095 S. Hunter Blvd.
Birmingham

Daily 10 to 5:30
Mon. & Thurs. 'til 8:30

642-4110
Ample Parking