

Israel turns out fashions

Guests at the all-Israel Fashion and Dinner will enjoy a collection of colorful, imaginative, round-the-clock clothing, much of which was created in the midst of a war.

The show is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 26 at Congregation Shaarey Zedek, Southfield.

It's often said that the Israelis are masters of the art of the impossible. The fact that Israel managed to fill its 1973 fashion orders on time seems an affirmation of this.

FASHION is one of Israel's top ranking exports and these fashions will help to sell $1 billion worth of Israel Bonds in 1974.

Despite the October war, Israel's clothing manufacturers kept the fashion flag flying, and managed to mount exhibits in other countries while battles were still raging.

Fashion buyers everywhere focus on Israel-made goods because Israeli designers create unique, avant-garde fashion that women like to own at prices they can afford.

The Women's Division of Israel Bonds gives impetus to Israeli fashions by providing an annual showcase via the all-Israel Show that tours 60 major cities in this hemisphere.

FEATURING the latest and best of Israel's ready-to-wear and haute couture, these shows attract much attention and large audiences.

Admission to the August 26 show is by the purchase of $2000 in bonds.

This year's fashion show will be of added significance in that it will be preceded by a dinner and will include both husbands and wives.

SHELLY WINTERS, star of international stage, screen, and television, will be honored with the Israel Bond Masada Award for her efforts on behalf of Jewish causes and Israel.

Mrs. Paul Borman, chairman of the event, said Miss Winters has "a reputation as a devoted and aggressive supporter of Israel, which she has championed with the same zeal as the many liberal causes she has been identified with."

Miss Winters has received three Academy Award nominations and two Oscars for films, and two Emmys for television.

THE SHOW will be staged and accented by Cardinal of Detroit.

Haute couture designers represented in the show will be: Lola Beer, Koby, Finy Lettersdorf, Maskit, Jerry Melitz, Gideon Osherson and Rivka Shafir.

Showing furs will be Stefan Braun.

Temple Kol Ami

Ernst J. Conrad, Rabbi

Next Year in West Bloomfield

For some time now, the Birmingham Unitarian Church has served as Temple Kol Ami's physical home. The relationship between the congregations has remained remarkably warm — especially since the gracious Unitarians had no idea we'd be around so long when our fledgling congregation came seeking a "temporary" lodging place eight years ago.

From the outset, of course, there was the dream of Temple Kol Ami's own home. As time passed and the congregation grew from fewer than 10 families to well over 100, a piece of land in West Bloomfield Township was purchased. The little clapboard house that was on the land provided room for an office and a study of sorts for Rabbi Ernst Conrad, but that was about all.

This spring, we broke ground at our property on Walnut Lake Road, west of Farmington Road. And within a year, Temple Kol Ami will be in its own fine new home.

The building will be modest by most standards — and that's precisely the way we want it. It will be good looking and it will be functional and it will be utilized to the fullest. But above all it will be modest both in size (membership is limited to 300 families) and in concept.

Temple Kol Ami believes in monuments of spirit and deed rather than of brick and mortar. We're convinced that such monuments are erected by cultivating an appreciation of our Jewish heritage ... by heeding the principles of righteousness and brotherhood ... by pursuing paths of intelligent social action ... by instilling in our children a solid understanding of the tenets of Judaism.

Our Sunday morning religious school activities (held at the Orchard Lake Middle School) are designed to serve as the basic building blocks for the latter goal. Kol Ami is a liberal, Reform temple and the school reflects that philosophy.

In addition to the Sunday morning sessions, Hebrew classes are held on Wednesday afternoons for those boys and girls who choose to take them, or who are planning a Bar or Bat Mitzvah.

If you would like to know more about us, please call us at 681-3988. We'd love to have you join us.
