

Sibley-Coffee eyes details

By CHRISTINE WALDEN

The Sibley-Coffee collection, recently at Saks Fifth Avenue, again proved the individuality of that team in translations of the big look, femininity and sophistication, often all wrapped up in one ensemble.

While the design range of Sibley-Coffee is varied, their consciousness of the feminine feel in the fashion market has created a set of exquisitely detailed and ultra-feminine blouses.

The blouses, a few trimmed with lace, others very simple in luxurious fabrics, are perhaps the high point of the collection. They look fabulous, even on hangers.

Other night time looks come with a black wool jersey theater suit. A satin-trimmed cardigan jacket tops a skirt and contrasts against a white satin blouse.

Or for those who like the pajama styles, fluid fabric is the key to the Sibley-Coffee version. The simple top with mandarin collar closes with sparkling buttons. The pants are loose and free.

THE FABRIC features an embossed pattern, which when examined turns out to be little flapper faces. Belled at the waist and scarfed at the neck, the ensemble is a stunning evening look.

By day Sibley-Coffee fans may find themselves in a camel colored three-piece ensemble. A flowing coat goes over a dirndl-wrapped skirt and a sailor-like top.
