Dream house

EVERY GARDENER'S dream is a greenhouse of his own. A 10-by-10-foot fiber glass and galvanized steel greenhouse is now available at local dealers. According to Wheeling Corrugated Company, the manufacturer, it can be "set up in a matter of hours with the aid of a friend and a screwdriver." A thermostatically controlled fan is included in the kit.

Lack of humidity shocks house pets

A proper amount of humidity in your home during the winter months does more than protect your furniture, please your philodendron and promote your personal comfort. It also makes your dog and cat more comfortable throughout the cold weather season.

According to the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), the average American home during winter is drier than the Sahara Desert (about 13 per cent relative humidity versus 25 per cent in the desert).

Your pet spends much of his time in this environment, said ARI, adding that many careful cat owners never let them outside at all. In these bone-dry conditions, it's harder for your pet to stay in tiptop health and appearance.

Dry indoor air is a factor in the buildup of harmless but annoying static electricity in the home, said the institute. Long-haired animals build up static electricity charges in their fur because of dryness, causing a spark and a shock when you reach to pet them.

Why not make your environment and your pet's as comfortable as you can? ARI points out that pans of water on warm air registers won't give the humidity level of 30 to 40 per cent which is considered advisable, for this you need a humidifier.

Many central system humidifiers are certified under an ongoing program of ARI. The institute makes information available on specific models in its directory, which you may consult at your regular dealer's office.
