vacation enough," Brotherton said.
The county commission races involving Farmington residents went as expected. Brotherton's seat on the commission from the 27th district went to John McDonald over Democrat Gerald Farrell. Farmington resident Pat Nowak won in the 25th district, which includes part of north Farmington Hills. Incumbent Republican Lew Coy and Lillian Moffitt won in the 24th and 15th districts respectively, which include parts of Farmington Hills. Another Farmington resident, Lee Coppock, was a loser in the 15th district state senate race. Incumbent Democrat Daniel Cooper swamped the Farmington resident in the district, which includes Southfield and Oak Park.

School seeking local employers

FARMINGTON—Counselors at Harrison High School are seeking employers who will open their doors to students for Career Guidance Week, Nov. 10-17.

Participating employers would host students in the Career-for-a-Day program being offered Nov. 11, 12, 14 and 15.

Employers interested in taking part in the program are asked to contact Jill Turley at the Harrison counselors' office.

Secretary of State Farmington office open

FARMINGTON—The Secretary of State's Farmington office started operating from a new location Friday, Nov. 1.

The new office is at 3316 Grand River in Farmington.

The new office will continue to conduct the same business it has in the past.

Office hours are 8:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.
