Indian Yule drive gets under way

The drive to aid Michigan Indians during the Christmas season has already been started by the Western Wayne County Conservation Association.

"There's a desperate need for food," said Hans Chrusciel, chairman of the group's Indian affairs committee. Local gifts go to a mission school at Harbor Springs and settlements at Cross Village, Petoskey, Manistee, Muskegon and the L'Anse reservation.

Chrusciel collects the gifts at his home, 19345 Brentwood, Livonia. Truckloads are driven to the Indians by apprentices of Ironworkers Local 25.

Food should be in cans only. Toys must be new; used toys are not acceptable. Clothing may be new or used and must be clean and mended.

Also acceptable are such household articles as soap, dishes, dental care items and the like.

The Michigan Indian project is conducted throughout the year but is heaviest during the Christmas and Easter seasons. Clubs, civic groups, churches, scout organizations, Y groups, stores, industrial associations and unions from western Wayne County and the Farmington area take part.
