

Celebrities model at charity show

By MARGARET MILLER

Area celebrities donned wearable fashions to help the Redford Suburban League raise funds last week at the Raleigh House, Southfield.

Proceeds from the show, with models including Mrs. Edward Cole, Mrs. Norm Cash and former Miss America Pam Eldred, will go to the league's project in aiding retarded and handicapped children.

The event raised more funds than any other single event in the league's history, according to ways and means chairman, Mrs. Jenine Duprey.

More than 1,000 women jammed the Raleigh House for the event, which included a variety of styles from Matthews of Birmingham.

Helping display the fashions were television personalities Doris Biscoe and Marilyn Turner and wives of several men known in median ad sports circles — Judy McCarthy, Deborah Coleman, Dorothy Cash, Theresa Delveccio, Maureen Fogel and Peggy LeGoff.

Mary Jo Coleman, who works in public relations for the Detroit Red Wings, came to lunch and stayed to do a fill-in modeling stint.

The fashions from Matthews ranged from a brown cocktail dress to a leather pantsuit.
