Witch Watch is 'supernatural'

Over the years, Gundella the Witch has been a school teacher, story-teller, party entertainer, college lecturer and proud mother of four.

Next week the great witch from Garden City begins a new phase of her career—as a columnist for the Observer & Eclectic Newspapers. "Witch Watch" begins Thursday, March 13, and her first topic will be spells.

Gundella doesn't believe in magic. "It's power—and you have the power within you," she insists. What she will do is teach people who think they are ordinary to use the powers within themselves, powers that are sometimes called "supernatural" only because scientists can't understand them yet.

THE JOLLY witch bounced across her living room (Gundella doesn't even believe in magic) as she talked about her column ideas.

A simple one is the use of a pendulum as a sex detector. "Farmers use this to tell if an egg will produce a hen or a rooster. They prefer to hatch hens," she said.

Flangetta, those moving platforms which point to letters, are another method of tapping "the power within you," she said.

Talismans, charms, amulets, less, herbs, precipitation with tea leaves, candle wax and tarot cards; Gundella is acquainted with them all.

She does little with astrology, however, although she has a better than average knowledge of the zodiac signs. She's a Gemini, like Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Observer & Eclectic Co-Publisher Philip Power.

Some columnists will answer readers' questions if they are of general interest. Write to her at Box 624, Garden City Mich. 48135. (If you want a personal answer, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Or you can just sit back and read her views about reincarnation, out-of-body travel, love spells and controlling your own "vibrations."

"I'M NOT a demonologist or devil worshipper," says Gundella, who has spoken to enthusiastic audiences in schools and churches and even taught a Sunday school Bible study class in a suburban Protestant church.

Descended from the so-called "green witches" of Scotland, she sometimes colors her face green for appearances—hence, the dark appearance of her skin in the photo. She has been active in a coven since her induction in 1946 at the age of 18.

Long a teacher in the Southgate, South Rockwood and Inkster districts, she left classroom teaching in 1970 when she began to win public popularity lecturing and conducting workshops on witchcraft.

Gundella has bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State and Eastern Michigan universities, respectively, and has a thorough knowledge of standard psychology and literature. She sees no conflict between them and witchcraft.

Gundella has taught 26 workshops everywhere from Oakland University in Rochester, Birmingham Seaholm High School, Troy (she has lots of fans in Troy), Farmington's Holiday Inn, Southfield's church in Bloomfield Hills, to Plymouth's Mayflower Meeting House and private groups in Livonia, Redford and Westland.

HER CHILDREN are growing up, meanwhile.

Gundella bounced across the room (she always bounces) to get a picture of her eldest son, who has temporarily given up the idea of being a symphony conductor Jim Malleague (his stage name) has joined Rick Underwood (who studied Shakespearean drama) in a Laurel and Hardy imita-

C'ville band plans concerts

The Clarenceville High School band will continue its public concert tour next week to raise funds for a trip to an international band festival in Mexico City in May.

The band will perform at 3 and 4:30 p.m. Sunday, March 2, in the Detroit Artillery Armory, on Eight Mile Road near Greenfield, and at Armstrong Buick, 3600 Plymouth near Merriman, Livonia, at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Monday, March 3.

The band hopes to raise $40,000 to pay for expenses for 120 musicians.

As part of the campaign, the band parents' organization will have a dance Saturday night, March 22, in Veterans' Hall, on Seven Mile near Grand River. Tickets are $15 per couple. Dress is semi-formal.

Tickets may be ordered in advance through Mrs. Robert Wood, 2611 Maplewood, Livonia. Live music will be provided by Lanny Swanson orchestra which will perform "in the Glenn Miller style," a parents' group spokesman said.

The group will continue its band trophy display at Livonia Mall, Seven Mile and Middle Belt, through today (Thursday).
