

Husband, wife share partnership

By CAROL HASKIN
 From Vernon and Irene Castle to Xavier Cugat and Charo, the performing arts boast a number of husband and wife teams.
 Connubial partnerships in the folk arts are much rarer, but can be found even in this area. The Steve and Edie of local weavers are Peter and Jeanne Braens of Orchard Lake.
 Although Peter was the first to take up weaving, Jeanne claims credit for introducing him to the art. A former home economics teacher who regularly attended textile shows, Jeanne said, "I was instrumental in getting him to places where weaving was going on."
 Jeanne said Peter's involvement in community affairs kept him out three nights a week until she finally suggested he take up an at-home hobby. He took up weaving.
AFTER VISITING a master weaver, he bought a loom and started in — without benefit of lessons.

 "My engineering background let me learn from books," said Peter, senior engineer of peripheral products at Burroughs Corp., "because I could visualize the interlocking of threads from the diagrams."
 Peter began in the basement ("I took up a hobby to be with my family and they sent me to the caverns") but moved upstairs a year later when Jeanne got her loom.
 The Braens have now been weaving for six years. Nine months ago they moved to a 110-year old farmhouse on Long Lake Road where they have constructed a weaving studio so no one has to go to the basement. Shelves stuffed with yarn line the walls, and benches are piled with examples of the Braenses work.
WEAVING CAME easy to Peter. "I didn't need to use the basic technique; I could conceptualize it

Turkey theme

"Turkey" astride two continents, is Europe's window to the east. Armchair travelers will take a visual journey to this land of intrigue through The Community House Travel Film Series on March 21-22.
 Photographer Willis Butler will personally narrate his newest film. Curtain time is 8 p.m. both evenings.
 A tourist's New Frontier, the country offers everything from rugged mountains to soft-textured tropical beaches. With a history embracing 17 civilizations, over a 4,000-year period, Turkey today is the free world's most fantastic experiment in bringing its 31 million people, overnight, from the Middle Ages to the 20th century.
 In Willis Butler's film, there is complete coverage of the modern, westernized capital of Ankara, her broad boulevards and ancient ruins; Goreme, with many weird, tough stone formations and 800
