

Hills council appoints historical commission

FARMINGTON HILLS—The city now has its own historical commission—and just in time for the bicentennial.

Spurred by the continual efforts of Mrs. Robert Briggs, the city council enacted an ordinance Monday night to

MOST OF THE newly appointed members of the commission also are members of the historical society.

And most have close ties with the history of the two communities.

Mrs. Thomas Czubiak lives in a century-old home. Mrs. Robert Gringer has been active in the historical society. Stella Syre is a 55-year resident. Albert Moelmann, an attorney, is interested in the community's history and was a member of the city's charter commission. Robert Rowe lives in a converted farmhouse.

Also named to the commission were City Clerk Floyd Cairns, a long-time resident, former Mayor Robert McConnell, Richard Frankel, a former member of the charter commission, and Jean Fox.

Hills planning commission

FARMINGTON HILLS—A church-supported senior citizen housing project will be the subject of a rezoning request at the planning commission meeting at 8 p.m. March 20.

The Rev. Joseph Dragowski is proposing the rezoning of single-family residential property to multiple family classification. The property is located north of St. Clare Parish Church on the north side of Ten Mile, east of Middlebelt.

Other items on the commission agenda are:

- 1. Rezoning from single-family residential to multiple-family housing for lots 628 - 630 of Grand River Crest No. 2 which lies on the east side of Colwell between Byron and Grand River as requested by M. M. Plankor.
- 2. Request by planning commission.

Counselor completes school resource file

FARMINGTON—A school resource file is now available to teachers, administrators and counselors at East Junior High.

Compiled in five weeks by counselor Ellen Silvers, the file lists academic and outside interests and abilities of the school's staff and indicates their willingness to share their knowledge with students and other staff members.
