

Clarenceville honors students

Clarenceville High School honored its top students in its annual convocation in the Louis Schriber Auditorium.

Seniors and underclass persons were given academic and special awards in the ceremony sponsored by the school's National Honor Society chapter.

Topping the awards were two young men and two young women picked as the school's outstanding students.

JOEL MOODY was named the outstanding school citizen as well as winning the student government award. The outstanding senior girl was Beth Berman while the top senior boy was Jeff High.

Lisa Berry was selected the outstanding underclass person.

In other honors, 16 seniors were given Phi Beta Kappa recognition for having an honor point average of 3.7 or higher, out of a possible high of 4.0.

The 16 are: Beth Berman, Jody Craig, Jody Craig, Victoria Dutton, Sandra Flack, Arnold Goldman, Robert Kaplan, Valerie Luka, Sally Shoop and Roger Zacks.

Twenty-two seniors were cited for academic excellence by receiving magna cum laude ratings for having an average of 3.5 or higher.

They are: Sheryl Aaron, Karen Bednar, Beth Berman, Jody Craig, Jody Craig, Sharon DeBono, Victoria Dutton, Sandra Flack, Arnold Goldman, Steven Grant, Cathy Hinson, Jeffrey Hochberger, Patrick Jeffrey, Robert Kaplan, Brian Kinnison, Valerie Luka, Elizabeth Ojczyk, Marshall Robbins, Lawrence Shoemaker, Sally Shoop, Patricia Wassman and Roger Zacks.

The only students to reach the summa cum laude honors with 4.0 average were: Sharon DeBono, 11th grader, and Anita Luka and Carmen Stalmann, ninth graders.

Among top award winners were Jeffrey High and Clyde Jokinen, Livonia Rotary Club citizenship award; Sandra Flack, Daughters of the American Revolution award; and Victoria Dutton and Jeffrey High, American Legion citizenship award.
