Harrison will have 3 new courses

FARMINGTON HILLS—In the Fall, Harrison High School will add three new classes to its list of permanent course offerings.

The board of education voted to add applied geometry, business machines and Italian I and II to the school's curriculum.

Lewis Schulman, assistant superintendent of secondary education, said the courses would not require additional teachers.

"We have the aptitude and ability already on deck," he said.

All three classes had been taught on an experimental basis for several semesters.
