

Young misses groom for title

Nineteen beautiful girls with a multitude of talent paraded before an audience and a panel of judges in Holiday Inn on the way to selecting Miss Farmington 1975.

They have already met the judges who got to know them through interviews and will parade again, in bathing suits and ball gowns, before the week is out for scholarships, gold goblets, engraved plaques, portraits, and cash prizes.

The winner will also get a sponsorship to the Miss Michigan Pageant and maybe a crack at becoming Miss America.

The local pageant is an exact replica of the Miss Michigan and Miss America Pageants, headed this year by Hildi Zetek and sponsored by 18 local merchants.

Kelly Burke, of Channel 7 acted as emcee for the talent competition, which constitutes 50 percent of the entrant's point tally.

Judges are Kay Clarke, director of Patricia Stevens Casting Agency; Russell Conway, Captain of Detectives, Farmington Hills; Betti Huff, a modeling instructor and parade chairman for the Farmington Founders Festival; Marilyn Main, supervisor for North Central Airlines; and Gerald Potter, assistant principal of Farmington High School and board chairman for the festival.

The Observer & Eccentric Farmington LIFE

1-B (P)

JULY 24, 1975

Staff photos

by

Harry Mauthe

