Try wax doll on drinker

Dear Concubine,
My husband is a wonderful man who can very bad habit. He drinks. He is an alcoholic, but will not even admit it to himself. He is a good person, and isn't mean, even when he drinks. But he is a lawyer and has a respectable position. I am afraid that his drinking will begin to affect his career.

Not only that, but he drives while intoxicated, and I am afraid he will kill himself, or someone else, with the car.

Moreover, my husband is becoming impatient. He has not seen a doctor, but I'm sure it is a result of his drinking.

Can you help him?

Mrs. F.P.L.
Alcoholism is often a symptom of another problem, a deep-seated emotional disorder, or perhaps a feeling of insecurity and a lack of self-confidence.

Your husband's work undoubtedly puts a great deal of pressure upon him, and this may be why he started drinking. Alcohol does temporarily help a person to forget his problems, but in the end it really intensifies them, and gives him some new ones to add to those he already has. An alcoholic must want to stop drinking before anyone can help him.

You may wish to try the following spell on your husband to give him the motivation to seek help. If you work it with enough emotion, imagination, and faith, you can send this thought to his mind and he will become ill each time he indulges in alcohol.

If he is at all sensible, this should make him seek help. tal and physical breakdown that sometimes occurs during the withdrawal from alcohol. The recipe is as follows:
Place 11 drops of peppermint drops and one drop of oil of cinnamon in one quart of water. Drink a glass of this two or three times a day.
I would suggest that you ask your doctor about this, however, before using it.

Kenzie-Pender rites held

Christine Ann Pender and Dr. Paul W. Kenzie were united in marriage in a recent ceremony in Orchard United Methodist Church, Farmington Hills, with the Rev. Eric Hammer officiating.

The newlyweds will live in Plymouth, where the bridegroom works as an optometrist. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Kenzie of Jacqueline Avenue, Livonia.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pender of Farmerville Avenue, Farmington Hills, was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a crepe gown with beaded lace trim and carried orchids and lilies. Her bridesmaids were Dianne Forte, Debbie Aufbucher, Diane Kenzie and Jackie Craft.

Robert Kenzie was best man and the guests were seated by ushers Gene Fonger, Dave Sutherland, Jim Simmons and John Kozak. Terri and Robert Forte were flower girl and ring bearer.

Then, put the doll in a safe place for one week. Repeat this procedure until the pain becomes so great the victim will no longer wish to drink. When he finally admits that he must stop drinking, there are many agencies that will help him. Alcoholics Anonymous being, of course, one of the best. He may also find the following recipe of help to him. This old folk remedy is used to help prevent the complete and severe men-
