Community Center schedules lectures

Beginning in October, the Farmington Community Center will offer a series of lectures called "Fabulous Fridays." Reservations are required, but there is no limit to the number of lectures you may attend. Gundella the witch will spark the series 9:30-11:30 a.m. Oct. 3, during a continental breakfast. She will speak on witchcraft and teach you how to "cast a spell."

Cost for this lecture is $4. Want to know more about natural foods? Betty Aschenbrenner Mathaei of Concern, Inc., will give a lecture, demonstration and hostess a luncheon of natural foods. She will speak on buying, growing and making healthful meals for $10.50, part of which is tax deductible.

Making up can be hard to do, but Marlene Coffey will lecture and have a demonstration on makeup techniques. A professional model, she often participates in Irene MacKinnon's fashion shows. Her lecture will take place Oct. 17 and 24 and will cost $7 for both sessions, including a continental breakfast. On Nov. 7, Betty Schwehr will help you build your knowledge of bridge. She will review Gocon conventions and systems for those who are already experienced players. Cost is $5 for the 10 a.m.-3 p.m. session. Bring your own sandwich; coffee and dessert will be provided.

Irene MacKinnon's fashion show and luncheon is scheduled for noon on Nov. 14. Reservations must be in by Nov. 9 and the $6 per person donation will benefit the Center. Thanksgiving decorations in the Williamsburg tradition will be taught by Pat Bentley and Janet Wood of "Fruitful Endeavors," 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. Cost for first-year students is $8.50, but $6.50 for second-year people. Materials are extra. Bring a sandwich; coffee and dessert are furnished.
