o-it-yourself eyebrows for highbrows

Correctly shaped eyebrows are one of the most difficult areas of facial beauty. But correctly shaping and coloring your brows is one of the best beauty tricks around because it costs so little and leads to outstanding results.

ITE FIRST BASIC to consider is shape. Shaping must begin directly above the inside corner of the eye. The brow line should follow the natural line of the upper eyelid. Don't try to completely reshape or alter the line of your brow. Instead, improve the shape of the brow you already have.

To determine where your brow should begin and end, line a pencil up along the side of your nose and the instance of the processing of the placement (1b). arch placement (1b)

Still boding one end of the pencil against your nostril, line up the outer end of the pencil with the outer corner of your eye-Your eye-brow should end where the pencil bisects your eye-brow. Although you'll find that most of your tweezing is between and under your eye-brow, occasionally there will be a wild hair above the brow. This should also be plucked. Begin the shaping by looking at the basic brow you want to achieve. (See Illustration 1A). You can see that the natural shape of the eyeld is fol-lowed. So, before doing anything to your brows, consider the shape of your brows, consider the shape of your brows. THE HEAVY STRAIGHT BROW (see Illustration 2). This brow not only overpowers and distracts from the eye but it could turn what would otherwise be a friendly face, into a scowling one.

The first thing lacking in this brow is an arch Creating an arch where there isn't one really open up the eye.
Unless you have very wide set eyes,
the arch placement is determined by the outside edge of your iris while looking straight into the mirror (see lihistration 18). Start by plucking out additional hairs under the brow. Then, weeze from inner comer to outer coradditional hairs under the brow. Then, tweeze from inner corner to outer corner, one row at a time. As you pluck, gently work into an arch. Pluck only a few hairs at a time, stopping every row and then to check the overall effect in the mirror.

Arching and thinning thick eye-brows opens eyes up and makes them look larger. Long brow hairs may be

IN ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

IN ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION about lightening brows:

Most large department stores with extensive cosmetic lines should carry at least one brow lightener and toner. This is a creamy cake that is rolled on with a spiral brush.

Sometimes a creamy foundation makeup will work if consistency is right. A liquid makeup wont do trick and neither will a cream if it's greasy. I strongly recommend experimenting, because sometimes something you bought for one purpose will work even better in another way.

If you want your brows bleached, have a professional do it.
