Here are this month’s featured books and media, chosen by our Teen Advisory Board.

Peer Review

Blended

by Sharon M. Draper

Blended shows how much racism goes through the world. Isabella’s parents are divorced. Her mom is white and her dad is black. This novel also shows what life is like for people with divorced parents. This book is a great representation of the difficulties that many people go through in everyday life. I highly recommend this book for many people struggling with the same difficulties.

Peer Media Review

Fire Emblem Three Houses

(Nintendo Switch)

In Fire Emblem: Three Houses, you take the role of Byleth, a mercenary-turned-professor at Garreg Mach. You get to choose 3 houses, the Golden Deer, the Blue Lions, and the Black Eagles, each with their own characters. I enjoy the gameplay and character interactions. The game is very fun and it deserves 6 out of 5 stars.

New Book

The Magnificent Monsters of Cedar Street

by Lauren Oliver

Monsters are real. But they’re not scary, like you might think. Just like other animals, they sometimes get hurt and need help. That’s where Cordelia Clay and her dad, Cornelius come in. Then one day, Cornelius disappears. It’s up to Cordelia, along with some of her monster friends, to track him down and save him from danger.
