Schools get millage renewal

millage renewal is approved and the district is in a better situation to balance its budget for next year," he said.

The Farmington community has always supported the educational program as long as employee groups and the board of education provided the best programs within the district's means.

"As long as the district continues to provide this relationship with the community, good will will continue to exist in the school community," Van Amerode explained.

Chief seeks peace and volunteers for consideration before a final product is initiated.

"WE WILL set up guidelines for communications between our own men and city," the fire chief says. "An informational procedure manual containing everything from A to Z also will be set by the department so everything is more uniform."

"The flow of information is important to our department and it is one area that needs special attention. If we want to improve our product, then we must improve our communication system."

The biggest problem facing the department is getting all the volunteers together at one time for specialized training or other functions, but Van De Voort says the men are taking a hard look at the problem to see where improvements can be made.

Comparing the 11th's volunteers to other firefighters he has worked with in the past, the chief says the department has more dedication than most full-time fire fighters.

Election workers are praised make certain lines are flowing and people make their voting applications," one precinct worker explains.

"I don't know where the district would be if it didn't have such dedicated election workers who come out wherever there is an election and spend their entire day at the polls," a satisfied Farmington resident said.

THE DISTRICT had several new election workers this year, but Flanagan says training the new recruits for the job isn't difficult.

"They receive their training right on the job," he says. "That's probably the best way because they see first hand what is going on."

During the slack periods, the chairperson will let them rotate between the various jobs and by the end of the day, the district has another experienced election worker.
