In essence, organizations produce their own "It's Your Turn" on Detroit's public station WTVS. Channel 56 The program, said Mrs Sperber, was founded on the belief in the value of free expression and trust in the fairness and honesty of those who use it.

Mrs Sperber, like a proud parret, considers "I'ts Your Turn" her special electronic baby. She believes public television, referred to as "alternate broadcasting" has grown in quality and has lost its image as a strictly echastional medium. Only two other stations, one in Boston and one in Philadelphia, offer their commission services to television art time they couldn't get on charmercral broadcasts, she noted
