Shutters are a moveable feat

Does the thought of re-doing a room leave you cold? Don't shudder. Shutter.

Movable wood shutters are taking their place at windows and doorways as a popular decorative accent for any room in the house. The "shutter look" is elegant, yet suitable for either formal or casual decor. And, movable shutters allow regulation of light, air, privacy or views virtually at the flick of a wrist.

Movable shutters are actually operating louvers. Used over windows, they generally cover the entire glass area and take the place of old-fashioned shades or venetian blinds. Shutters can also be used as pretty and practical "pass-throughs" between kitchen and dining areas. Shutter doors—fully-louvered or with louvers in the top half and wood panels in the bottom—make dramatic room dividers or connecting doors.

The shutters are operated by moving the louvers up or down. Slats can be set at any angle to admit varying degrees of sunshine or light, to control ventilation, to let in or shut out views, and to insure privacy. A special advantage is that privacy is possible without closing off all light and air. Some shutter styles fold back like an accordion to uncover a scene or open a pass-through. Various wood shutter styles are available in stock sizes of ponderosa pine at home centers and local lumber dealers.

Esthetically, movable wood shutters have a distinct advantage over curtains or shades. They give walls a trim, uncluttered look, and when completely closed have the appearance of rich wood paneling. Shutters can be painted; but are especially effective when stained to highlight the natural wood grain.

groves. The lady beetle from Down Under did her work so well that the scale pest was brought under control in a year's time.

Since then, control of more than 200 insect pests has been attempted through this method. Complete control was reported in 70 cases, and partial success in more than half the remainder. Most impressive results were recorded in suppressing insect pests on alfalfa, olives, walnuts, grapes, and citrus.
