Lucrative dinner

Secretary-General Netanel Lorch of Israel's Knesset (center) shares a sweet reward with Joseph H. Jackier of Farmington (left), this year's annual Shaarey Zedek-Israel Bond Dinner honoree, and Robert A. Steinberg of Birmingham, Israeli Bond's Ambassador's Society of Trustees chairman, following a meeting of the leaders of Shaarey Zedek at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Field in Southfield where $350,000 in sales were subscribed.

MEA honors Vasu Lynch

The Vasu Lynch Funeral Home in Royal Oak received a Business Industry and Labor award from the Michigan Education Association (MEA) at the MEA's recent representative assembly in Saginaw. The award was established by the MEA in 1973 to recognize the contributions made to education by businesses recognizing programs and activities which go beyond the usual and traditional approaches to education.

The award was given to Vasu Lynch Funeral Home for the development and presentation to high school students of the program: Death, Dying, Grief and the Funeral.

The one-week program, developed and taught in several area high schools by brothers Pat and Tom Lynch, was designed to acquaint students with the psychological, sociological and practical aspects of death.

The program provides students with a realistic and humane awareness of what happens when someone dies.

At a meeting in Florida last fall of the National Funeral Directors Association, Tom Lynch taught a two-day workshop for funeral directors from all over the country on how to teach the class to high school students.

Annual meet for Hebrew schools slated

The 56th Annual Meeting of the United Hebrew Schools of Metropolitan Detroit will take place at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, June 9 in the Louis and Esther LaMed Auditorium in Southfield.

Officers and directors will be elected and reports given on the state of the Hebrew Schools by Milton Laxer, president, and Dr. Jay Stern, superintendent.

Special notice will be taken of the retirement of Mrs. Rae Goodman, who has been involved with the schools since 1948. A reception will follow the meeting.
