A multi-purpose room with wall-to-wall carpet in an "L" shape to separate the work/eat area from the rest of the room is created by using carpet squares. The 12-by-15-foot installation can be accomplished in only three hours.

Carpet squares are an answer

Separate or decorate?

Apartment living, condominium ownership, second-home hideaways have changed our living attitudes. Making the most of a one-room lifestyle can be a challenge.

Changing lifestyles bring new thinking in decorating techniques because multipurpose rooms are not restricted to sleeping or eating anymore.

One way to visually separate certain activities is by using different colors in the floorcovering.

There is probably no do-it-yourself project that is easier, or offers more pleasure and rewards, than the installation of textured wall-to-wall carpet with squares.

In a simple L-shaped design, one area is isolated for study or dining, while the other, in a contrasting color, is confined to space for relaxation with books, stereo and television.

It is difficult to tell that sculptured shag carpet squares is anything other than wall-to-wall roll carpet.

In a guestroom-study-den, the print and solid fabrics that cover the couch, pillows and frame the shutters can be coordinated with the colors of the carpet squares.

The flexibility of the flip-leaf table allows it to work successfully as either a desk or dining table. A single-bed placed along the wall becomes a studio couch and the storage cube doubles as a night stand.

WARM TERRA cotta colors of pottery... the straw color of wicker... and the light wood naturals of contemporary furniture are highlighted against the handsome dark brown of the cork wallpaper.

A wall system does more than provide storage space; the collections that are exhibited openly also decorate the room in a very personal way.

In a larger home, this kind of room can be a quiet place for reading, sewing or snoozing. In a smaller home or apartment, the arrangement makes the most of limited space.

Because of the ideal configuration of the room (a rectangle), there is absolutely no waste or trimming. In other less ideal rooms, there is still minimal waste.

CARPET SQUARES have their own self-stick foam backs with the advantage of no mess or fuss. Furthermore, carpet squares are easy to cart home from the store in compact boxes.

If you want to separate, or just decorate—carpet squares can be the answer to do-it-yourself custom-carpet possibilities.

As easy as "place-and-press," Armstrong sculptured shag carpet squares offer the do-it-yourself easy installation with professional looking results. A combination of contrasting colors offers endless design possibilities.
