Band seeks musicians

Musicians of any age are being invited to join the Garden City Concert Band, which begins its seventh year of activity at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday in the band room of Radcliff Junior High School, Garden City.

Ten metro-west communities are represented on the band's roster including, besides Garden City, residents from Farmington, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Wayne, Westland, Livonia, Northville, Inkster and Plymouth.

The band performs nine months of the year, recessing from June to September. It plays its home concerts at O'Leary Center for Performing Arts, Garden City. The organization also sponsors a 16-piece big band made up of concert band members.

Musicians interested in joining the Garden City Concert Band can either show up at rehearsal at Radcliff Junior High, Radcliff Street, south of Ford Road, at the extreme west end of the city, or call 421-7417 after 7 p.m. for further information.

Ages of band members last year ranged from 14 to 65 while experience ranged from junior high school musicians to former professionals. The band, under the direction of Dale Werner of Livonia, began in 1969 as part of the adult education program in Garden City and in 1970-71 expanded into a full concert band of 63 pieces.

It rehearses every Tuesday at 8 p.m. and its only stipulation is that members attend regularly.

Ronstadt projects good image

By NEILL EISENSTEIN

Linda Ronstadt has a soaring, pure, emotion-filled voice. She also projects an image of "Daddy's little girl." She used both to good advantage Saturday night at Pine Knob.

She entered in a Boy Scout uniform and cheekily giggled into the microphone. She immediately launched into her repertoire of heartbreak-home-by-the-hearth sentiment mixed with sunny, California down-by-the-beach country-rock. Very homey, very suited to her.

Truly, her image was important to the material. Slight shakes of her body would elicit yells, and a mention of the cooling temperature brought forth a huge howl of, "I'll keep you warm, baby!" It is interesting to conjecture on how things would have gone if she had dressed differently.

She had excellent backing musicians who were especially energetic on such hits as "When Will I Be Loved?" and "That'll Be the Day." There were a welcome relief from the limp warm-up band.

And through it all, working comfortably with the other instruments, Ronstadt's voice reached new plateaus of control and emotion. Also commendable was the control she took of the stage, the band, and her between-numbers patter, three problems which have plagued her in the past.
