Television courses set at OCC

Television production classes will be held on Saturdays for the first time at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College starting in January. The special all-morning Saturday offering is designed to make the college's full-credit broadcast production laboratory available to teachers, media specialists and others who work during the week.

Enrollment for COM 156, Broadcast Lab, is limited to 16 students. The three-credit-hour class will meet from 9 a.m.-12 noon for 15 weeks beginning Jan. 14. The class will be conducted in the television studio on the Orchard Ridge Campus.

Students will learn basic non-engineering TV production skills as camera operators, floor managers, floor assistants, artists, audio operators, VTR operators, technical directors, directors, editors and producers. They also appear as air talent in class-generated exercises and productions.

"This is an experimental offering," says Ted Rancourt, professor of communications. "That could lead to more weekend scheduling if the response is positive. We assume the Saturday class will attract adults in the community who have an interest in or involvement with media. But the class is also open to our regular students, so we don't know exactly what to expect."

Registration will be held Jan. 4-6 with late registration through Jan. 13. For more information, call 476-9400.

Apply for taxes wait for refund

It's that time of year to begin thinking about filling out those dreaded tax forms. Property taxes are also due. And, while the deadline for submitting those forms is slightly more than five months away for most of us, veterans, senior citizens and the disabled should be thinking about a special tax form. The Michigan Department of Treasury has mailed out more than 300,000 such forms, which are applications for local property tax refunds under the state rebate program, to eligible veterans, senior citizens and the disabled. Under Michigan law, many citizens, especially the elderly, are eligible for local property tax refunds if those taxes are high in relation to their income. More than $125 million was rebated under this program last year. Applications which are received early can be processed more rapidly. Those forms arriving late will take longer to process because the Department will be swamped with approximately 3.5 million regular personal income tax returns.

The Treasury Department operates 23 field offices in the State where assistance is available. People needing help with the forms can also contact 6th district State Representative Wilbur V. Brotherton at his Lansing office at (517) 373-1793.

Hills restaurant blaze causes little damage

Farmington Hills firefighters had little trouble extinguishing a minor fire at a Hills restaurant last week, fire officials confirmed.

A small fire confined to the fireplace assembly caused about $5,000 worth of damage in the Starboard Tack restaurant, located on Orchard Lake Rd. south of Thirteen Mile, said Fire Chief John Van DeVoort.

Combustible items located too close to the heat chamber of the fireplace and perhaps faulty construction of the fireplace itself are the known causes of the blaze, he said. An inspector is pursuing the investigation, he added.

Stations Nos. 2 and 4 responded to the mid-afternoon blaze last Thursday, and customers and employees were removed from the building because of smoke, he explained.

Students accepted to special program

Two Albion College juniors from the Farmington area have been accepted in off-campus study programs for the 1978 winter semester.

They are Sarah Calkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P.S. Calkins, 23230 Power Rd. Farmington, and Nancy Schaefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Schaefer, 35847 Carter Crest, Farmington Hills.

Miss Calkins will enter an internship program in Philadelphia. At Albion College she is the corresponding secretary of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. A dean's list student, Calkins is an economics major. She is a 1975 graduate of Farmington High School.

Miss Schaefer, who also graduated from Farmington High School in 1975, has been accepted to study at the Merrill-Palmer Institute in Detroit. At Albion she is the Junior Panhellenic representative of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity's Little Sisters. Schaefer is majoring in elementary education and home economics.
