

Few vines are more handsome than the wisteria (also spelled Wisteria), and few are more obstinate when it comes to three times, each cut being about an inch or so apart. Just cut into the bark until you hit the hard wood. Do not remove any bark, and don't worry if the cuts bleed sap for a counte of days. Some tricks include digging a loot-deep trench around the axes of the plant (3 feet away) and replacing the soil with poorer soil, since too rich a soil discourages blooming.

Another trick consists of eringing the bark to induce flow-ering. For many years orchard-ists have used this trick to in-duce fruit trees to bear, Stub-born plants such as wisteria e been forced into bloom by

It should be mentioned there are other reasons why plants do not blossom, and ringing will not correct them. Non-flowering can be due to poor weather, lack of pollination, too much shade, too much nitrogen, to name a few. MAGIC LILY CARE: The so-called Magic Lily, sometimes called Hardy Amaryllis or Au-tumn amaryllis is known corhumn amaryllis is known correctly as Lycoris squamigera. It has green, strap-like leaves appearing in spring, then these died down and completely disappear by June. In August Jarvender spikes of flowers (2 to 3 feet long) and fragrant, opp up out of the ground. While a poor keeper in wase arrangements, magic lily does make a poor keeper in wase arrangements, magic lily does make a worthwhile perennial. Failure to bloom is due to deep planting or overcrowding. Separate the bulbs in spring or fail. whole house central

Partition Controls Open Space

The divide and conquer rule can be applied to unmanageable open space in basement or garage.

Control is accomplished by construction of one or more partitions that are within the skills of any home handyman, suggests John Concord, home improvement consultant. The do-lt-yourselfer can begin by determining the best locations for partitions. Next step would be installation of still and cetting plates to form a test proper of the step with the partitions. The poly-fours anchored by both floor and ceiling will provide an adequate frame. The length of the two-by-four plates will, of course, determine the length of the partitions. When additional framing, or studs, are attached to the plates and spaced 16 inches part, paneling can begin. The time you ring is impor-tant. For example, you can ring the plants about two weeks af-ter their normal flowering time, What the ringing does is this: it causes an accumulation of carbohydrates, which stimu-lates the plants into flowering.

natis that can spoil the final appearance.

Prefinished panels come in a variety of woodgrains and patterns and are dent and wear resistant. They also are tidea for installation over furred concrete or block walls if it is the homeowner's intention to finish the rooms for functional living. The variety Blue Bird is a favorite, it has 1/4-inch flow-installing attractive partitions and then devoting the smaller rooms to specific purposes can the like adding a two or three-room papertment to your home, when the form improvement expert believes.

An out-of-style fireplace can be modernized at small expense. Various companies offer sample wood maniels that are carefully designed and well constructed. They needs to be grounder to be considered to be possible. The construction of the constru

PREFINISHED hardboard paneling goes up over the studs, and Concord recommends general purpose adhesive for the best results. The adhesive los easy to use, and eliminates the necessity and bother of nalls that can spoil the final Are Good Mixers

Decorating Tip For Fireplace

Anchusa is a good "mixer."
It goes well with all other flowers. Seedlings transplanted from the seedbed or row can be set in groups in a border to fill in the areas where bulbs bloomed earlier.

Summer forget-me-not is the common name for anchusa. True forget-me-nots bloom with the tulips.
