Order Soft Coal Now

"When do you expect some Hard Coal?"

"Do you think you are going to have any Hard Coal?"

These questions are asked us daily. We do not blame our customers for being anxious. It is a serious matter, and all we can do is to explain the situation exactly as it is. We have no Hard Coal now, and there is going to be a big shortage.Farmington has been a big Pocahontas, Coke and Hard Coal burning community. You cannot get Pocahontas, because the government has zoned same out of Michigan; all this coal is being shipped to tidewater. You cannot get domestic Coke, because it has been removed from the market. The federal fuel administration has ordered shippers to base Hard Coal shipments on our 1916 tonnage, and cut same 25% with no absolute assurance that we will receive even this supply. In the coal year of 1916 we received 32 cars of Pocahontas coal.
Farmington has grown some in two years, and this tonnage of Pocahontas, together with the shortage of Hard Coal tonnage, must be met with substitutes.We are accepting orders for delivery of West Virginia and Kentucky Soft Coal for delivery upon receipt of cars. Now is the time to provide for next winter when rail congestion and government requirements will isolate us from our supply.

We cannot store enough coal to keep the community supplied.

Customers must provide the storage, and the last order of the federal fuel administration provides that anyone who is able to buy and store his or her coal now, must do so, as all orders booked now for future delivery, by persons not financially able to pay for their coal will take preference, and the customer who waits must take his chances.We have signed government orders on file for several hundred tons of Hard Coal for delivery to our customers. Each allotment must necessarily be cut, especially in case of hot water or steam furnaces. The man with a base burner must have Hard Coal. Help him out by burning Soft Coal in your furnace.

By cooperation, Farmington can avoid a repetition of last winter.

During July and August Soft Coal shipments will be large.

Safeguard your own interests, and help win the war by, ordering NOW.
