AND KIDS HAD their place in the picnic also. A pet show (best left told by picture) and a puppet show were staged for the younger set, many of whom got their first taste of brotherhood.

While adults were enjoying the various doings of the festival that appealed to grownups, groups of wide-eyed children were having the time of their lives at their own special puppet show in the First Farmington Methodist Church.

Floral Park News

by E.R. PHILLIPS, 474-6676

We are so very sorry to report an error in our column July 15. The young lad who was to be operated upon for heart complications was Scott Mundle and not Scott Austin as reported. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Austin were the grandparents.

We are so sorry but the young fellow failed to survive. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mundle of Farmington. Our deepest sympathies are offered to all the family.

Kelley Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burke of 22716 Floral is home on a 14 day furlough after completing his basic training at Fort Campbell, Ky. He is to report to Fort Gordon, Ga. where he will continue his work in broadcasting. He will return as a PFC and is hoping his wife, Patricia, and daughter, Bridget, will be able to join him.

The Phillips family of 22719 Lilac have had the pleasurable company of Mrs. Phillips' brother and his wife, Simone, and their three sons, Leo, Paul and Raymond, of Fort Gary, Manitoba, over the "Moon Landing" weekend.

Mrs. Jeanene Havstad, of 38561 Grenada, Livonia, a volunteer at the Founders Day booth when the governor signed, said that she was completely surprised to see the governor, whom she had never met before and very pleased that he signed her petition. She added that if citizens of Michigan do not aid in this effort now, the chances of change occurring are slim. The Michigan Legislature failed to pass a presidential primary in the recently completed session.

Backers of the drive believe that they can obtain 200,000 signatures by the Dec. 15 deadline, but stated that they needed 10,000 citizen-volunteers to help reach the goal and urged all interested citizens to contact their office by mail at: Michigan Citizens for a Presidential Primary, 19160 Mootie Vista, Detroit, Mich. 48221 or by phone at: 313-864-1506.

They got underway. The production took place on a beautiful blue stage with a scarlet red curtain. Dialogue and music were provided by the recordings and the characters were portrayed by puppets, skillfully made and dressed by ladies of the auxiliary. Judy Huber was chairman of the event with Marge Abrams handling the business details.

Hansel and Grisel's adventures with the Wicked Witch of the forest, who was as ugly as she was nasty, kept 25-35 children engrossed for an hour at each performance and gave grateful mothers a chance to rest their feet before taking off again to battle the austral crowds.

But mothers enjoyed the show as much as the kids, even the kid who thought he was going to see a "Bozo" cartoon and forgot all about it as soon as the curtain went up.

SAUNDERS ART Show on the front lawn of city hall was respectfully within the realm of domestic paintings--from Ruth Newkirk's scenic dunes of Oakland community. Calling attention to Irene Schmidt's oil on wood of two friendly owls. Mrs. Newkirk's collection was actually just a pretty photograph-painting tour of Farmington highlights and sidelights, including shots of the new Community Center.

Besides the usual still-life settings of fruit bowls and oak trees, there were some unique buys: A black-and-white water color silhouette of Newfoundland fishermen. A yellow daisy with banana-like petals which should have included Chigita seas.

Golden chrome frames much more impressive than the paintings enclosed in them.

Two sisters, one of them closer to "partially-made" than anything else in the show, but whose innocence was too obviously accented by a snow-white dove.

Pen-and-ink line drawings that were just pen-and-ink line drawings.

But probably the most significant picture was a pastel setting for only $25--compared to $50 for many.

Milliken Aligns With Primary

FARMINGTON As the petition drive for a presidential primary reached the 50,000 signature mark, Gov. William Milliken, Congressman Jack McDonald (R-19th), and State Sen. George Kuhn (R-West Bloomfield) added their signatures to the petitions at the Farmington Founders Day Festival. Gov. Milliken had just finished participating in the parade which climaxed the annual Founders Day Festival.

organizations of both political parties will follow the governor's lead and support the presidential primary petition drive. Craig added that under Michigan law this is the only year when it is possible to initiate presidential primary legislation in time for the 1972 election.
