CO-OPERATION IS PRIMARY MAXIM OF STATE FAIR EXPOSITION IS ONE OF FIVE LARGEST IN THE UNITED STATES. EXHIBITS BY GOVERNMENT Man Must Come to Realize His Dependence Upon His Fellowman and Ally Himself With the Great Universal Army. Each fall for 65 consecutive years the Michigan State Fair has been held starting as an exceedingly small and unimportant exposition. It has grown year by year until today the Michigan State Fair is one of the five largest annual fairs conducted on the American continent. Despite the fact that the State of Michigan has within its doors this great agricultural and industrial display, combined with the premier features of the amusement world, there are still many Wolverines unaware of its mission and who do not realize its importance. While the State Fair has been of unlimited aid to the industrial and agricultural life of Michigan in former years, that year its scope has been greatly widened and it will become a gigantic war agency. The federal government has taken the fair under its consideration and is sending large exhibits manned by federal employees. Co-operation Solution of War. Solution of the present agonizing world's war lies in the co-operation of the American public and Co-operation has been the fundamental principle of the Michigan State Fair since 1919. This idea has been an underlying maxim through the history of the organization, but it has been especially fundamental since the reins of office were taken over by G. W. Dickinson, Secretary-Manager, five years ago. This year the slogan of Co-operation will be in prominent place more than ever before. When a man sits down to a meal does he ever consider who provided it? Does he even know, in most cases, where the different components of that meal came from? Did the salt and the pepper drop its manna from heaven? Did the flax or the cotton which forms the tablecloth grow upon the home place? Were the fibers spun into yarn by his housekeeper and was the cloth woven on the household loom? Did he rear the animal which supplied the meat? Most Independent Are Dependent. Who delved into the earth for the salt, the sand and the clay and who turned these raw products into knives, forks and dishes? No thoughtful man can consider these questions without being tremendously impressed with the utter dependence of even the most independent man upon the co-operation of hundreds of thousands of his fellow men, whom he has never met and never heard of. No matter what his vocation may be—rich man, poor man, lawyer, merchant, thief, doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief—man's very existence is contingent upon the co-operation of thousands of people and organizations. The Michigan State Fair is the gathering ground where this co-operation may be established, and an agency for preventing men from becoming so thoroughly specialists that they forget the other fellow. It is here they learn the great benefits which are known to be the direct results of helpful co-operation. At the 1918 Fair, to be held in Detroit from August 30 to September 10, over 200,000 citizens may learn how he is able to do his share in co-operating against the Hun.
