Harvest splendor at festival

The bounty of the Michigan harvest season can be admired Sunday of the Plymouth Fall Festival. Between 9-11 a.m. the entries arrive with judging in early afternoon. Categories include: Tallest sunflower, tallest stalk of corn, biggest pumpkin, largest squash, and best wheelbarrow of vegetables—commercial or private.

- Prizes will be awarded for the best fresh flower arrangement, the best dried flower arrangement, and the largest bouquet of old-fashioned garden flowers.
- There also will be displays of home canning.
- Ribbons and small cash prizes will be awarded.
