it with a matching cream colored Lou Tay lor bag.

Sandra Morgan chose a camel bag from the same collection which offers a wide range of colors in the big bag that now goes with both day and evening clothes.

Mrs. Morgan is a member of the Troy Jaycettes who are giving teas and coffees this summer to spread the word about the benefit while the Jaycees handle the financial end of things.

She will wear a brown and cream, rayon and wool blend from B. Siegal's French Room on concert night, accessorizing the boat neck on the two piece knit with a multi-colored silk scarf.

Concert promoters get an assist from the Volunteer Service Committee at the Royal Oak Hospital, represented by Eleanor Fisher who will wear a St. John Knit, whatever the weather.

The nubby knit chosen by the West Bloomfield resident comes from the French Room in coral and brown, decorated with gold buttons and accessorized with gold loop earrings.

Shirley Prust, a Franklin resident and member of the sponsoring auxiliary, chooses to wear a three piece camel and balt knit from the French Room. The blouse is polyester and dacron, the vest and skirt are a wool and rayon mix, and it is all washable.

Her bag is by Ruth Saltz, for sport or evening wear, worn on her arm or over her shoulder, whatever is most comfortable.

Tickets for the Sept. 18 event may be purchased at the Beaumont cashier's office in Royal Oak.
