Two of the principal dancers of the Metropolitan Ballet Company of Michigan who will perform at the bicentennial ball are David Kozora of Southfield and Toni Corless of Royal Oak.

Bicentennial dance to feature ballet

The Metropolitan Ballet Company of Michigan, headquartered in Southfield, will be the performing group at the Oakland County Bicentennial Commemorative dance at Springfield Oaks Oct. 20.

The three-year-old company, founded by Davore Wilson, a 20-year-old ballet teacher from Royal Oak, will give a 20-minute program, allowing guests time to relax after the meal and before dancing to the popular Ballroom Orchestra begins.

Ms. Wilson said she will bring her own Marius Flier so her 21 dancers will feel secure as they move into the spotlight before the 1,000 expected guests. The ballet program will include a classical pas de deux and the opening act of a new ballet, "Journey to the Center of the Earth."

Ms. Wilson taught jazz tap and ballet for seven years for the Toys, Parks and Recreation before opening her own studio in Clawson.

The company started because I had many fine dancers who didn't want to leave to go to New York City, but did want to perform," she said.

Since a good floor is crucial for a successful performance, the portable $1,100 by 15-foot vinyl floor was one of her first purchases.

The company opened its 1976-77 season in Southfield with the debut of two original works—Journey, which is set to Rick Wakeman's music and a traditional ballet to music from "Fiddler on the Roof."

The semi-formal dinner dance at Springfield Oaks in Davanah is attended as a special tribute to all in the county who have worked on bicentennial projects. It is open to all who wish to attend. Many counts and state officials will be there, but the committee stresses that it is primarily a social gathering.

Eddie Busch, ticket chairman, said that immediate reservations will be taken until Oct. 15.

Marianne Belanger of Farmington Hills is chairman of the event. Working with her on decorations is Marjorie Beve of Farmington. Debra Little and Kay Smith are in charge of programs.

The walls of the ballroom will be decorated with selections of art work of Oakland County school children.

Tickets are available through Ms. Busch, 643-6111 or the county bicentennial office, 643-1776.
