Presbyterian women open SERRV Boutique

By LOUISE MCLELL

SERRV Boutique, the project of the Presbyterian Women's Association of Farmington, is now open to the public.

The boutique is located in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, 4501 Ford Road, and is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Thursday and Friday.

The project was started by Eileen Cozier, chairwoman of the Presbyterian Women's Association, and is now being run by Ruth McKinnon and Mary Avery.

The boutique is the equivalent of a department store, offering a wide variety of items for sale. These include paper crafts, straw creations, and carvings.

The items are made by the women of the Presbyterian Women's Association and are sold at a profit to help support the church's social service programs.
