A favorable opening lead and some excellent card reading by Bill Richmond of Rochester, resulted in a top on the hand in the diagram. He was playing with his wife, Fern, and her confidence was rewarded. The contract was most ambitious: West was reluctant to lead a spade, because South had bid spades. East should have shifted to a spade. Nevertheless, Bill took advantage of the breaks and made 11 tricks. He played low from dummy on the opening club lead. If West was leading the fourth best, then East could only have one higher. The queen won and Bill played the jack to unblock the suit. The diamond return was won in the closed hand and led a low club and finessed the nine. The contract was now safe.

The spade shift at trick two should be obvious. Partner must have at least four, and probably five spades. The South hand would not have bid one trump with a six card spade suit.
