Monique Morgan (from left), Deborah Eckols and Suzanne Leslie Stark as Masha, Olga and Irina appear with David Sederholm as their brother Andrey in a scene from "The Three Sisters," by Anton Chekhov. This modern drama classic officially joins the Hibberly Theatre's repertory at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 12, following a preview Jan. 11. TV auction wants help

Although "The Great TV Auction" is still four months away, Channel 56 is asking area merchants to donate their excess end-of-the-year inventory to the cause of public TV. The donation will be just in time to earn a deduction on this year's tax return. Merchants are also asked to include donations to Channel 56 in their 1977 budget planning. In April 1977, when the auction takes place, the merchants will be given credit when their products are shown on live color TV to an auction week audience of more than a million viewers. Donated items will be shown by celebrity auctioneers from the world of radio, TV, sports, press and civic affairs. Almost any kind of merchandise can be donated to the auction, from cameras, tennis rackets and wristwatches to boats, trips and cars. The sky is the limit. Channel 56 only asks that the items be brand new and valued at $35 or more. The Great TV Auction is an annual event that runs like a huge department store sale for one week. Funds it raises go to support Channel 56, Detroit's only non-commercial, public-supported TV station. For more information or to donate goods, call Honey Friedman at Auction Central, 873-7229.
