
Exploring the vineyards

Joseph Ganci of O'Donnell Importers will take students on a mini-tour of the vineyards of Europe when he offers a short course in wine appreciation in Farmington Community Center. His course is scheduled to begin Feb. 7. Registration continues in the center for all classes and workshops offered during the winter term until all classloads are full. Persons may stop in the center, or call 477-8404.

It's Girl Scout cookie time

Farmington residents Mrs. Louis Dinacci, Jennifer Harmon, of Brownie Troop 504 and Karen Dinacci, of Junior Troop 326, have a cause that's easy to swallow. They'll be taking orders for Girl Scout cookies Jan. 22-29.

This year scouts of all ages will be taking orders for Girl Scout cookies Jan. 22-29, as part of Southern Oakland Girl Scout Council's annual cookie sale. Brownies, scouts from six to eight years of age, will be participating for the first time.

Two co-chairmen will be assisted by seven volunteers who are responsible for co-ordinating sales within a geographic area.

Heading up the Farmington Hills contingent is Mrs. Ronald Johnson.

Five different flavors of cookies can be ordered for $1.25 per box. They include peanut butter patties, peanut butter sandwiches, sandwich cremes, thin mints and shortbread.

Profit from the sale directly helps 12,000 girls in more than 650 troops broaden troop activities by supplementing their weekly dues income.

Council profit from the sale indirectly benefits girls through the training of leaders and other volunteer personnel; through developing and implementing new programs for girls; through owning and operating two camps used year round by scouts and non-scouts as well.

Shriners tap Morrison for regional office

Fred Morrison Jr., 36, of Farmington, has been elected leader of the 11-county, 16,000-member Moslem Shrine Temple of Southeastern Michigan.

He is the youngest Illustrious Potentate in the 97-year Moslem Temple history. He will hold the office for one year.

Morrison, who is vice-president of Morrison Carbonic, recently was recognized for originating and developing the idea of conducting the North-South Shrine Game in Michigan.

The first game, which raises money for the Shriner Children's Hospital, was Dec. 17 in the Pontiac Silverdome. Because if the game's success, it will become an annual Shriner event in Michigan.

Morrison's father, Fred Sr., was Illustrious Potentate of the Moslem Temple in 1967. He is still active and responsible for bringing to Detroit what will be the world's largest convention in July, 1978. The convention will bring 50,000 delegates and a minimum of $10.2 million to the Detroit area.

The younger Morrison will become Imperial Potentate in July.

Japanese culture classes to begin

A workshop on Japanese art and culture will be taught in conjunction with Central Michigan University by Dr. George and Mary Bowman beginning Jan. 19.

The workshop will continue on Wednesday nights for 12 weeks in Adlai Stevenson Elementary School in Southfield, beginning at 7 p.m.

The workshop may be taken for undergraduate or graduate credits, or may be audited.

A key facet of the course is that all teachers, administrators, or student teachers from CMU within the past five years are eligible for full tuition refund upon completion of the course.

The workshop will include discussion of Japanese arts, flower arranging, brush painting, tea ceremony, calligraphy, history, culture and customs practice.

The Bowmans are Farmington residents who have traveled and studied extensively in Japan and have developed an appreciation and knowledge for the Oriental culture.

Stevenson Elementary School is located on Lasher, between Eleven and Twelve Mile Road.

Inquiries will be taken by calling the Bowmans at 477-4043.
